5 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE AS PARENTS AWAY

WATERFORD, Ont. (UPI)—Five children died today when fire swept their home while their parents were away visiting relatives.

The dead, ranging in age from 18 months to 11 years, were children of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hoffman. Two other children escaped the 15-minute blaze which was believed to have been caused by an overheated stove.

The victims were identified by police as Janet, 11; Robert, 10; Archie, 7; Patricia, 4, and Glenford, 18 months.

Meeting Could End Congo War

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United States said today the fighting in the Congo's Katanga province could be suspended once Katanga President Moise Tshombe leaves Elisabethville for a meeting with Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula.

In a statement released both here and in Washington, the U.S. state department said: "The question of a cessation of hostilities is up to the United Nations, but we would hope that once Mr. Tshombe has demonstrated the seriousness of his intentions to negotiate by actually leaving Elisabethville for an agreed meeting place with Mr. Adoula, fighting would be suspended.

"We are in consultation with the acting secretary-general of the United Nations on this point."

Tshombe sent a telegram to President Kennedy Thursday saying he wanted to negotiate various aspects of the Congo problem with Adoula. He asked Kennedy's intervention "as a friendly man and as a Christian to designate a suitable negotiator to stop at once useless bloodshed."

The U.S. statement said Kennedy sent a prompt reply through the U.S. consul in Elisabethville that the United States was "proceeding immediately to explore the possibilities and would communicate further with him as soon as possible."

It noted that Adoula now is in Kivu province, about 1,000 miles from Leopoldville, but newly appointed U.S. Ambassador Edmund Gullion in the Congo capital "hopes to be in contact with him before long."

In announcing Mr. Gullion's appointment today, Kennedy said he would be his personal representative in the Katanga situation.

Gullion was expected to confer with UN under-secretary Ralph J. Bunche, now in Leopoldville on a fact-finding visit, and Adoula before making approaches to Tshombe.

Hanging Death For Eichmann

By THOMAS R. REEDY

JERUSALEM (AP)—Adolf Eichmann, Nazi Germany's expediter of Jews to the gas chambers, was sentenced today to be hanged in Israel for "a crime of unparalleled enormity." But no execution date was set pending appeals that may take several months.

Moshe Landau, president of the special three-man Israeli court which tried and convicted the former Gestapo colonel, intoned:

"This court sentences Adolf Eichmann to death for crimes against the Jewish people, crimes against humanity and war crimes."

Eichmann, 55, and balding, stood stiffly erect for 15 minutes while the tribunal first gave its reasons and then condemned him to be hanged. Six hundred persons packing the courtroom were deathly silent throughout the brief session, then filed out with hardly a sound.

Eichmann never even gulped visibly. He quieted the facial nervous twitch evident during the trial, and his hands hung loose and unclenched by his side.

Eichmann, who had scornfully refused to plead for mercy before the sentence was pronounced, was told he has 10 days to file notice of appeal with the court and an additional five days to draft his reasons.

Reeves Willing To Start Talks

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

A civic summit meeting will be held early next month to discuss launching a factual study of municipal integration for Greater Victoria—either by amalgamation or metropolitan government.

This was the first accomplishment of Mayor-Elect R. B. (Dick) Wilson only hours after he won a stunning 82 per cent of the votes Thursday night in his first election bid for city council.

His landslide victory, over Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith was a record.

Mr. Wilson said his first action after his inauguration as mayor Jan. 1 will be to invite the Reeves of Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt to a meeting to discuss a proposal for a study of integration.

Solid Aldermanic Support Seen

Ready agreement for such a meeting came today from the three Reeves even though veteran Oak Bay and Esquimalt Reeves George Murdoch and A. C. Wurtele indicated they have not changed their minds against amalgamation.

Saanich Reeve-elect Stanley Murphy, who originally called for a Victoria-Saanich meeting on metro government, said he would meet Mr. Smith also to get his support as an MLA.

A poll of city council members Thursday night showed the mayor-elect will have solid aldermanic support for his move.

Mr. Wilson, an advocate of integration, called for a return to the "vision and planning" by pioneer city councils.

But, he said, a study of all the factors and costs are necessary first.

He proposes that the four municipalities unite in asking the government to invoke Sec. 766 of the Municipal Act which would create an integration study group.

The group would have two representatives from each of the municipalities with a provincial appointee as chairman.

ich amalgamation study reported favorably on the proposal but when the question was submitted to voters Victoria approved it and Saanich decisively defeated it.

Jacked by his tremendous mandate, Mr. Wilson intends to re-open the question again, this time on a broader scale.

"I'm not for the big stick method of achieving integration," he said. "I think there should be a study first but I'm convinced when all the facts are gathered in that it will be proved desirable."

A subsequent Victoria-Saanich

Major Breakthrough for City

It appears, from the co-operative tone of Reeves Murdoch and Wurtele, that Mr. Wilson is likely to be successful in obtaining four-way participation in the study at least.

If he does, it will be a major breakthrough in the area's history.

A four-way study was strongly sought by Mayor Percy Scurrell and Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash in 1958 but it foundered on refusal by Oak Bay and Esquimalt to participate.

A subsequent Victoria-Saanich

'Planning Is Not a New Thing'

"But I'd like to do it in co-operation with all the other municipalities—not to force it onto them but to have a complete joint investigation of the situation."

Mr. Wilson said he felt that amalgamation, metro government and any other feasible method of integration should be viewed impartially.

Strongly advocating more planning for progress, he pointed out that "planning is not a new thing—it's been used in ages past in many cities."

"Our forefathers in Victoria planned well."

Mr. Wilson said progress could not be obtained without planning "but that doesn't mean you have to be excavating. You should always look at the costs first."

Mr. Wilson said he hopes to obtain familiarization briefings from retiring Mayor Percy Scurrell next week and plans to resign his present post as chairman of Victoria University development board to give his full time to the city.

WIRE BRIEFS

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations General Assembly today, climaxed a historic China debate by refusing to give Nationalist China's seat to the Chinese Communists.

The vote on the Soviet proposal, with 20 abstaining, Britain voted for the Soviet proposal, while the United States, France and Canada voted against it.

The decision represented a substantial victory for United States as the China issue received its first showdown test since the Communists took over the China mainland 12 years ago.

The issue now goes over until next year when the Russians are expected to renew their demands.

SLAMMED DOOR
Before the main vote, the Assembly virtually slammed the door on Red China for another year when it decided that a two-thirds majority is needed to seat the Peking regime.

The vote on the preliminary procedural resolution was 61 to 34 with seven countries abstaining.

Full-Scale Battle Raging In Heart of Elisabethville

From Times News Services

ELISABETHVILLE—Indian United Nations detachments struck from the north at dawn today and battled their way to Katanga defence positions only four blocks from the heart of Elisabethville, capital of secessionist Katanga province.

Machine-gun and rifle fire cracked along the skirmish lines. Mortars duelled in the heaviest ground engagement of the war.

UN forces also attacked from the air. An Indian Canberra fighter-bomber raked Camp Tshombe, a Katangan military camp, with rockets as fighting raged around the Katanga provincial parliament and other parts of Elisabethville.

Few troops were believed to be still in the camp but frightened civilians elsewhere in the city dived for cover.

Katanga's secessionist regime said an all-out UN offensive was repulsed by its forces overnight and also claimed its troops were still resisting a UN attack on Kongolo in the province's northern hinterland.

At least one civilian was reported killed in a fierce exchange of machine-gun fire and mortar shells during the night.

The British consulate said a British woman was killed when mortar shells blasted her house and added: "We have a lot of distressing problems on our hands."

A Katangan statement issued by President Moise Tshombe's office said the UN offensive was launched after heavy mortar fire at about 10.30 p.m. Thursday.

The Katangans returned the fire and the situation was never critical, the statement said.

CHILDREN OF INDIA

'Breadwinner' Earns $1.10 Weekly

The breadwinner in a poorer Victoria home might be a ditch-digger earning $70 a week.

This is bad enough but in the Indian community of Ko-

Her husband is dead, her 15-year-old son just disappeared

Some of the money Times readers gave during last year's Times Children of India Fund drive is helping to keep them alive now but there must be more.

Mrs. Sargi Joseph is just one of the thousands of Indians with the same burden of seeing their children slowly waste away.

SHE'S 'SWELL'

Christmas for 3-year-old Vicky Downer of Massena, N.Y., will be as merry as possible under the circumstances because her brother Teddy told Santa Claus just before he was killed by an auto Dec. 8. LONDON—Two women today reported they are doing good business selling cans of "genuine London fog."

The women, recreation directors at the U.S. Air Force base at nearby Ruislip, are Marge Binder and Babs McAgnon.

They formed a company to market London fog after a friend sent them a jar of fresh air from Wisconsin.

The girls have sold 8,000 cans of fog at 35 cents each, mostly to Americans on their way home from Europe. Instructions regarding its use must be obeyed to obtain the full bouquet, they say. The can must be opened in a closed room after dark with the lights off.

Miss Binder said the cans contain "genuine wild fog caught near Hyde Park."

MOBILE, Ala. — Passers-by smilingly attributed the sign in front of a downtown church Thursday to poor spelling rather than poor morals.

It read: "Immorality is not a gift; immorality is an achievement."

TACOMA — A cat named Nero was the hero when the Harley Erb home caught fire here, his owner reported today.

Nero, four-year-old Siamese pet, didn't fiddle around when he smelled smoke. He ran upstairs and jumped up and down on Wayne, nine, until Wayne woke and sounded the alarm for the rest of the family, including his parents and a brother and sister.

"If it hadn't been for Nero it could have turned into a tragedy," Mrs. Erb said.

Later Erb said thoughtfully: "And to think that a month ago I was going to get rid of that cat."

CHATHAM, Ont.—The smudged and carefully printed letters delivered to a special mail box for Santa Claus here indicate, despite what their parents may think, some children are making an effort to be good.

A boy from Chatham Township wrote: "I am a seven-year-old boy and I have tried to be good. My sister is five years old and she hasn't even tried."

Another said: "Although my brother and I have not been too good, we are hoping you will overlook it."

SALMON, Idaho — About a month ago, a little black dog—owners and ancestry unknown—took up residence on a mid-street traffic island in the centre of town.

He has spent most of his waking hours and all of his sleeping hours on that small, unsheltered island. Temperatures as low as 14 below zero haven't made him move.

Employees of a nearby grocery take him food. He retreats when they approach but always returns for the food.

He never barks at passing automobiles. Once in a while he looks up expectantly, as though hoping for his master to pick him up.

If the owner should return before Christmas, he'll find the dog under a lighted Christmas tree which has been erected on the island—sleeping by night, just watching by day.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England — A lecturer on kleptomania — the irresistible urge to steal — was hauled into court for stealing.

Mrs. Elettia Watts admitted taking £3 worth of goods from two stores but told the court:

"I decided it would be nice to take some things from shops and bring them along to illustrate my lecture and point how easy it is to shoplift. Then I planned to return the goods the following day."

The magistrate wasn't convinced by her excuse and fined her £10.

DERBY, England — Mrs. Nelly Jones, 47-year-old widow, was jailed pending trial on a charge of setting fire to the municipal Christmas tree.

STRATFORD — A store clerk, who insists the story is true, said an old lady who makes occasional shopping trips to Stratford complained to him that she was getting too old to run across streets, dodging cars.

The "don't walk" illuminated signs at the traffic light intersections were confusing.

The old lady couldn't understand why pedestrians were forced to run.

efficiency in planning or construction, will be a crime for which posterity can justly hold us in contempt."

This is his seven-point power policy for B.C.:

1. Develop as much hydro power as can be sold at a profit first in B.C., second in other parts of Canada, third in the U.S., before its value is destroyed by nuclear energy.

2. Sales contracts should "not normally exceed" 15 to 25 years and should contain specific provisions for recapture of power.

3. Money from sales should be applied to the immediate reduction of power costs to all consumers until they are at least as low as in any competitive area.

4. Immediate development of the Columbia treaty projects as soon as sales contracts can be negotiated with the U.S.

5. Develop the Peace River right away, as well as other power resources in "less advanced" parts of B.C. to diversify industry.

6. Facilitate integration and interchange within B.C. utilities, and, at the right time, integration of B.C. power with national and U.S. grids.

7. Maximum technical and administrative efficiency in all utilities with encouragement of competition for reducing operating costs.

Dr. Keenleyside stressed that he wanted his speech taken as non-political.

He said that it is now apparent that nuclear energy will make hydro plants uneconomical within two decades. That is why it is important to develop B.C.'s potential as soon as possible.

If this hydro potential is "intelligently and dynamically handled" it can bring an annual gross income of $100-$200,000,000, he said.

Tax Returns To Ottawa

Taxpayers in Victoria—and throughout the western provinces—will send their income tax returns direct to Ottawa next spring, where a computer will check the figures.

C. E. Wesson, director of taxation in the Victoria area, today confirmed the change.

"We will issue addressed envelopes—to the data centre in Ottawa—with all income tax forms this year so Victorians will mail their returns direct," he said.

"But those who do not wish to post their returns can still bring them in to the Belmont Building and we will forward them to Ottawa."

However, there will be no change in the inquiries procedure. Victorians with tax questions will be able to get information from the Belmont Building office as usual.

COLORADO TRAGEDY PROBED

Bus Didn't Come to Stop Says Engineer of Train

GREELEY, Colo. (AP)—Colorado officials searched today for the cause of the school bus-train collision that killed 20 children Thursday.

An official of the Colorado Highway Safety Council said poor visibility resulting from frosted windows may have contributed to the accident.

The council's executive secretary, Merf Evans, said in a report to Attorney General Duke Dunbar that "90 per cent of all school buses in Colorado are overloaded."

This was not a factor in the Greeley tragedy, however. The bus load was 23 passengers below its capacity at the time of the crash.

Thirteen children are in a hospital. Four others among the 37 children aboard were treated and released. The driver, Duane Harms, 23, suffered minor injuries and shock.

They were in a late model, 60-passenger bus sliced apart at 8:05 a.m. by the Union Pacific's 16-car passenger train, City of Denver, at a rural crossing near here.

NORMAL SPEED

The streamliner, 90 minutes late because of Christmas baggage delays en route from Chicago to Denver, was travelling at 79 miles an hour. Railroad officials said that was normal speed.

Herbert F. Sommers, 64, a Union Pacific engineer for 22 years, said the bus did not stop at the crossing, marked by wooden crossarms and a road sign.

"He stepped on the gas and drove right in front of the train," Sommers said.

Harms, a school bus driver since last September, said: "I think I did stop. Well, I'm quite sure, because I usually do."

Jerry Hemby, 16, a bus passenger, said: "The bus stopped and then started up again."

Colorado law requires a school bus driver to stop within 50 feet, but not less than 10 feet from the nearest rail, look and listen for trains.

APPLIES HIS BRAKES

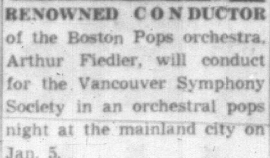

Engineer Sommers said he applied the emergency brakes about 50 to 75 feet before the impact. The train travelled about a mile beyond the crossing.

Sommers said he began sounding the locomotive horn about 500 to 600 feet before the crossing.

Assistant District Attorney Karl Ahlborn said Harms' statement said the bus' windows were slightly frosted or steamed but the windshield defroster was operating.

The bus had picked up about two-thirds of its normal load before the crash.

Germany was advised if he felt the time given him was too short, he could ask the president of the Supreme Court or his deputy for an extension.

Decision on the appeal is not expected before March. If it goes against Eichmann, he can apply to Israeli President Izhak Ben-Zvi for clemency.

Eichmann is the first Nazi to be tried in this state which holds itself out as the protector of all Jews in the world.

Israeli legal authorities say he may be the last one brought to judgment here. They reason the case has served to chronicle what happened to the Jews during Hitler's Third Reich, how the plot to exterminate the race came into being, and how 6,000,000 Jews died.

"The wrath of Israel now has been spent," one court authority commented.

Judge Landau, who presided over the three-man tribunal that tried Eichmann, again denounced him in his statement of sentence and termed his crimes "of unparalleled enormity."

"Full penalty essential,"

Delivering the sentence in Hebrew while Eichmann listened through earphones to a translation in his native German, Judge Landau said:

"For the due punishment of the accused and to deter others in the future, the maximum penalty laid down by the law has to be imposed in this case."

"The aim of the crimes against the Jewish people of which the accused has been convicted was to blot out an entire people from the face of the earth. . . Such total crimes are of an even graver nature than the sum total of the criminal acts against individuals."

But Landau said the court must also take into account the injury to individuals.

"Indeed, the dispatch by the accused of every train carrying a thousand souls to Auschwitz or to any of the other places of extermination amounted to direct participation by the accused in one thousand acts of premeditated murder, and his legal and moral responsibility for those murders is in no way less than the measure of liability of him who put those persons with his own hands into the gas chambers."

Servatius had argued that Eichmann was a victim of an evil system and contended: "The acts of which he is accused are crimes of a government, not of an individual. The accused could not have done anything. He could not stop this machine, the apparatus."

Even had they found that was so, said the court, "we would have said that one who had participated in crimes of such dimensions for years on end has to undergo the greatest punishment known to the law, and no order given to him could be a ground even for mitigating his punishment."

But Eichmann, the judges continued, in fact "identified himself in his heart with the orders received by him and was actuated by an ardent desire to attain the criminal object"—the extermination of the Jews.

MARKS THE CLIMAX

The sentence marked the climax of a 100,000-word judgment that the judges spent three months writing and two days reading earlier this week.

The judgment also convicted Eichmann of a fourth class of crimes—of membership in "hostile" organizations branded as criminal by the Nuremberg war crimes tribunal. These were the Nazi SS, or elite guard, the Gestapo secret police, and the Nazi SD, or security police. But the court said it imposed no punishment for those crimes of membership.

Eichmann left the courtroom to exchange the neat blue suit, white shirt and striped tie he wore for his trial for the red suit of a condemned man, prescribed by British practice which Israel adopted.

A special death cell must be created in the Haifa prison for him. Israel abolished capital punishment for all crimes except those against the Jews and high treason and does not possess a death cell as such.

There are two gallows in Israel. One is in Jerusalem, the other in Acre. But the gallows in Acre, where Jewish resistance fighters were hanged when the country was under British control, has been turned into a shrine.

Eichmann, who as head of the Gestapo Jewish affairs division, was one of the last major Nazis known to be at large, was captured in Argentina after years of running away in an attempt to hide his identity.

Israeli agents kidnapped him to Israel, which refused Argentine demands to surrender him.

Death Sentence Was 'No Surprise'

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—Adolf Eichmann's West German defence attorney said today that the death sentence was "not a surprise" to his client.

"After all," Robert Servatius told an Israeli newspaper, "Eichmann did not expect that he would be able to return to his family as a free man."

Servatius, interviewed by the newspaper Yediot Ahronot, praised the conduct of his client's trial here as "a great spiritual achievement."

The Cologne lawyer compared the postwar Nuremberg war crimes trials unfavorably with the proceedings of the three-judge Israeli court which convicted Eichmann earlier this week and today sentenced him to be hanged.

Servatius said: "After all, the Israeli court could deliver a judgment on the following lines: 'We have heard everything and we convict the accused.'"

"This is not the way the Israeli judges acted. They examined thoroughly and only afterwards did they deliver their verdict. This is a great spiritual achievement."

SANTA PUTS YULE TREE HIGH ON SPACE NEEDLE

SEATTLE (AP)—A steeplejack fastened an eight-foot Christmas tree atop the torch of the Seattle World's Fair space needle Thursday, 600 feet above the city's streets.

Bob Kessler, 34-year-old Seattle man who spends much of his time washing windows of some of the city's tallest buildings, dressed in a Santa suit to do the job. He wore the usual hard hat of the construction worker, but it had a top-knot of cotton, and a strip of the same stuff ran around the brim.

"It's the first time I've ever played Santa Claus, and I don't think I'm the type," he said.

BRITISH PRESS RAPS U.K. CONGO POLICY

'Paving Way for Communists'

LONDON (Reuters) — The Conservative government, bitterly attacked by socialist legislators Thursday night in a stormy debate on The Congo, today came under fire from sections of the British press.

The influential Guardian of Manchester warned that government policy over the United Nations-Katanga fighting is paving the way for Communist intervention in other parts of The Congo.

It said: "If Katanga is allowed eventually to go its own way, with the mercenaries keeping the central government at arm's length, what is to prevent the eastern province from securing help of mercenaries or 'volunteers' from Communist countries?"

"That is the shortest road to taking The Congo into the cold war, but it is the road along which the British government and Sir Roy Welensky, premier of the Rhodesian Federation, would push it."

The left-wing Daily Mirror said Britain's friends in the UN today include Belgium, "with an appalling colonial record in The Congo," South Africa, with its "vicious racial laws," and Portugal, "whose government has massacred thousands of Africans in Angola."

Right-wing Conservative legislators hinted during the debate Thursday night that the "American copper lobby" is pushing the UN military campaign in copper-rich Katanga.

Robert Turton, a leader of 32 right-wing Conservative reels, said certain American interests would profit if mining in the province was paralyzed by the fighting.

FERRETS AT WORK?

Russ Fish Fleet Disrupts Radar

BEDFORD, Mass. (AP)—The appearance of a vast Russian fishing fleet off the New England coast has disrupted vital testing of experimental radar equipment for United States air defenses.

An air force official said Thursday that "many tests of experimental equipment have often been shut down because of the Russian fleet."

Some 100 Russian trawlers and several mother ships as large as freighters have been seen off the coast for months. Some have been observed within 20 miles of Cape Cod.

The pioneer system of radar defence is the SAGE complex developed by Lincoln Laboratory of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Radar is an almost magic way of "seeing" objects in the air or sea. Scientists, however, have always been concerned by the fact that the radar target also can learn a lot by monitoring the radiation.

Both sides in the cold war use devices known as ferrets to detect radar emissions and thereby discover the source, wave length and other features of the opposing radar system.

Air force scientists have no doubt the Russian fishing fleet is well equipped with such devices.

The final link in a series of 21 SAGE direction centres is scheduled to open today in Sioux City, Iowa.

An Overwhelming Victory

YESTERDAY'S ELECTION WAS an outstanding personal triumph for Mayor-elect R. B. "Dick" Wilson. As his soundly beaten opponent, Mr. J. Donald Smith, MLA, now recognizes, it was a sharp rejection by Victorians of the suggestion that a man can serve two masters. Indirectly it was a tribute to retiring Mayor Percy Scurrell, who gave Mr. Wilson strong backing. And, in a broad sense, it may also have been a citizens' protest against provincial government treatment of the municipalities.

As the Wilson landslide set in, Mr. Smith faced the fact frankly that Victoria is not prepared to accept as its chief magistrate a person whose pledged loyalties are divided between his duties to the city taxpayers and his allegiance to the Social Credit government. The Saanich experiment earlier in the month, when Mr. John Tisdale, MLA, finished a poor last in the reeveship contest, has been repeated with emphasis here, as elsewhere across the province.

The poll has disclosed Mr. Wilson's tremendous popularity with citizens who appreciate the excellent service he has performed in Greater Victoria. It also shows the public's regard for the sensible approach he brought to issues in the election campaign.

At the same time, the voting revealed the weight of the albatross members of the provincial legislature carry when they invade the municipal field as staunch adherents of the Social Credit government.

That is a point which should not be overlooked by Mr. Bennett when next he hears pleas by municipalities for better treatment.

In the aldermanic field, there were few surprises. The incumbents, who benefit from publicity received over the past terms of office, were not seriously challenged by any infusion of prominent "new blood" and, with two notable exceptions, maintained a level of support roughly comparable to that of 1959.

Mrs. Lily Wilson's accomplishment in heading the aldermanic poll provides evidence of Victoria's appreciation for her fine work in the social service field.

On the other hand, the Rev. Ald. Lewis McLean dropped about 1,000 votes from his initial candidacy in 1959, which should convey to him the loss of esteem he has suffered as a result of his stand on the recent "religion and jobs" controversy at City Hall. He was fortunate to squeeze past the popular clubman, "Bill" Hudson, who is to be commended for two noble efforts to achieve a council seat.

All in all, the people of Victoria have given the incoming administration a thumping mandate to carry on the constructive work and progressive attitude initiated under Mayor Scurrell.

The future for this city appears bright. As it enters on its second century, it has installed in office a dynamic and personable administrator whose family celebrates its centennial in Victoria at the same time as the corporation. With his proven talent for diplomacy, "Dick" Wilson may be expected to run a harmonious and progressive council which will be worthy of the trust reposed in it by voters.

A Liberal Wins Weyburn

THE RESULTS OF ONE PROVINCIAL byelection, even one as important as Weyburn, can scarcely define a national political trend.

The Liberal victory in the Saskatchewan riding held for 17 years by retired premier T. C. Douglas, now the New Democratic Party leader, does, however, indicate that the recently married CCF-Labor political group has not the magic for the voters which many of its sponsors forecast.

In the first major test in the only Canadian province which has elected a Socialist government, the NDP failed. The personal appeal of "Tommy" Douglas was missing, and so was the public support accorded to him in his years as a candidate.

Mr. Douglas and his successor as premier of Saskatchewan have been quick in their attempt to make some capital of the result. It proves, they argue, that the NDP has established itself as one of the two political forces in the province. They extract this cold comfort from the fact that Weyburn was a two-way fight between the NDP and the Liberals. The absence of Social Credit and Conservative candidates, they contend, shows that on the one side is the Socialist group, on the other the combined forces of free enterprise, with the Liberal candidate representing the basic philosophy of other parties active in the previous election.

This is a natural position for Mr. Douglas and his people to take. It represents, in fact, part of the grand strategy announced by Mr. Douglas some time prior to his assumption of the New Democratic Party leadership.

Among the early objectives of the new party, he explained, would be the exertion of pressure to make the old Liberal and Conservative Parties coalesce on the national scene. Once they had been forced into union, the NDP would become the alternative—and hence eventually form the government of Canada.

They hammer that point to blunt the edge of defeat in Weyburn.

Conveniently ignored is the fact that the unsuccessful NDP candidate might have received fewer votes had the electors been offered a wider choice.

On the other hand, the result at Weyburn does underscore one virtue of the byelection in this return to a two-party system. The majority of voters there, who apparently wanted something other than Socialism, were able to express their preference without dividing their forces. No doubt local issues and the important argument over the government-approved medical plan were significant factors in the byelection. This does not detract in any way from the triumph of Mr. J. H. Staveley, former mayor of Weyburn, and a man who on earlier occasions ran strongly even against the champion of Saskatchewan's CCF, Mr. Douglas. He has scored a personal victory and may have marked the turn of the tide in the province which has tried socialism for so many years.

More tests must be run before the latter point can be clarified. At least there can be little satisfaction in the New Democratic Party over Wednesday's result.

Well Done! Service Centre

THE ARMED SERVICES CENTRE has just completed the eighth year of its operations in this community, and Greater Victoria, no less than the men who have enjoyed its facilities, has occasion to thank the directors and officers who have made such a success of this venture.

Initially the centre was designed to provide amenities for servicemen in their off-duty hours and to add to the attractiveness of Victoria as a "liberty port." That it has succeeded in these objectives is indicated by the consistently heavy use to which it is put.

Like to Buy a Village?

THE PEOPLE OF MONTELEONE Rocca Doria in Sardinia have had the course. All 300 inhabitants want to sell their village and get out.

Their ancient home no longer supports them. What little arable land is contained in the region will be drowned by an artificial lake to irrigate other areas nearby.

A prospective purchaser is offered ancient churches, an asylum, scholastic buildings (a new school nobody wanted), wonderful climate, history and a magnificent view.

This seems to be just the Christmas present for anyone who can afford to fly in all the things he needs to live.

The price? The inhabitants haven't set one. But some pretty fancy real estate went for 11 dollars in Manhattan a long time after Monteleone-Rocca Doria was established.

BIG IN ABILITIES AND SCHOLARSHIP

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

He Was Bigger Still as a Human Being

TO say that Grant Dexter was the ablest political writer of his time in Canada would be a grave understatement of his career. Certainly no contemporary could match his knowledge of the nation's politics but it is the man, not the journalist, editor and scholar who is remembered today.

As his friend and colleague of forty years I speak with the prejudice of affection but I think it fair to say that Grant was one of the nation's truly great men and I doubt that any of the famous statesmen who knew him on all sides of politics will question that verdict.

He was a big man in his abilities, in his scholarship, in his sure grasp of the political process, but he was bigger still as a human being. And it was as a human being, in his last days of life that he welcomed, as who would not, some intimation of his real status in the nation's life.

The biographers who are working on Mackenzie King's diaries found therein the other day a remarkable extract. In 1940, when his fortunes seemed at a low ebb King wished to explain his real position in the war to the Canadian people. He wrote in the diary that only one man could be trusted to understand and explain him, a man of unequalled experience and insight and a man, moreover, trusted by the public.

So, as the diary records, he resolved to call in Dexter. Next day they met at Kingsmere and roamed the hills together while the Prime Minister poured out his hopes and fears and the reporter listened. From that woodland talk came a clearer exposition of King's mind than he himself could ever express. So the diary records.

Grant was a modest man with almost a vice of self depreciation but he appreciated that record after a delay of almost twenty years. It would be quite unfair, however, to suppose, though he was a Liberal by lifelong and passionate conviction and the intimate of all Liberal leaders that he was ever a mere partisan. Grant was much too big for that.

He grasped the political process whole; he was equally trusted by Conservative leaders and he became a warm friend of Mr. Arthur Meighen whose correspondence with him will some day shed a new light on the nation's secret history.

It was this quality of trustworthiness combined with a peculiarly hard mind and a diligence which finally destroyed his health that made Grant a giant in his profession. But only his close friends knew the other side of him, the bubbling humor, the keen interest in all kinds of little things—the birds in his backyard, the fish in his Gatineau lake, the children next door, the poetry of Milton, and the minutiae of Canadian history. As his friends know today we shall never look upon his life again.

Essentially, though he spent most of it in Ottawa, his life was the product of two things, the western prairies and his mentor, J. W. Daffoe.

Under all the attrition of politics in the capital and the friendship of the great he never lost the western touch or forgot Daffoe's lessons. When the great Canadian editor's eye lighted on the cub reporter and detected something special in a boy fresh from the farm, he had found his true successor. Thus it turned out.

GRANT DEXTER

Once Grant had reached Ottawa as Daffoe's apprentice correspondent he became the editor's eyes and ears. The correspondence between these two, a pile of papers three feet deep, which Grant showed me in Ottawa the other day, is undoubtedly the most complete record of Canadian history in our generation.

Apart from the personal tragedy of Grant's early passing it is a public tragedy that he did not live long enough to complete his lifework and write the book which only those documents could supply.

Until they are examined by historians the inward movements of our politics in the last four decades will never be fully understood and in many instances will remain distorted. Having seen it I can testify that the Daffoe-Dexter correspondence—the reporter nourishing the editor with information that could not be printed and the editor interpreting the facts with the wisdom of age—is a mine of riches.

Its secrets, if they are ever published, will drastically alter the public record from the year 1924 when Grant, then a gangling youth, arrived at the capital which, in his own way, he was to conquer.

That conquest of journalism was complete. No change of government or personalities on parliament hill interfered for a moment with Grant's sources of information because he had the confidence of his political friends and opponents alike. Such Conservatives as Meighen, Bennett, Manion, Bracken, Drew and Diefenbaker knew that Grant would fight their policies with all the force of his pen if he disagreed with them but they also knew that he would always be fair—would never distort a fact, sink to personal invective nor violate a confidence.

Thus his view of Canada came from all sides, including incidentally the socialistic left. No man was closer to him, for example, than the late J. S. Woods. No man in Canada today will be grieving more than M. J. Coldwell, who hid no secrets from his public opponent.

Because he could be trusted, because he knew more about the nation's business than any other man in Ottawa, above all because he knew human nature, Grant acquired troops of friends. With all of them he shared his knowledge freely and all of them, from cabinet ministers to young cub reporters, were in his debt.

Yet he chose, while all doors were open for him, to lead a private life, shunning publicity, avoiding Ottawa's social whirl and studying at home, as perhaps no Canadian journalist has ever studied, the documents of government, the fine print usually missed by his contemporaries.

Only this concentrated study, year in and year out, could have built up his store of facts until he was an acknowledged expert in a dozen fields as his dispatches to this newspaper have proved. Even the encyclopaedic mind of Daffoe contained no more knowledge of public business than that of his pupil and successor, with whom the older man was well pleased.

The combination of character, talent, hard work and a facile pen must have made Grant, though he would be the last to realize it, one of the most influential Canadians of his time.

His influence, like Daffoe's was not made by sudden flashes or that kind of sensational journalism which he abhorred, but quietly, layer by layer, like sedimentary rock through the years. He had no ambition but to report and interpret the nation's business and, being a convinced Liberal in much more than the partisan sense, to let the people judge the facts for themselves.

The facts dug up by his homework, and his daily contacts with the men who made them, colored the whole atmosphere of our politics. And always they illuminated and cleansed it. That was his lasting contribution to the nation he loved—he informed it as no other contemporary journalist has ever done, as no other is likely to do in our time. Yet it is not the peerless reporter we miss today.

It is the great-hearted man of most delicate honor, whose mind was an inspiration, whose friendship was beyond price. With him goes an age in our journalism and, to his friends, a living force for good that can never be replaced.

Shortchange Language

By B. A. TOBIN

A NEWS item says that a conference will be held in Ottawa next spring to consider, among other things, whether or not we ought to change our system of spelling. There is some question as to whether "right" is better than "nite," whether "through" is a better way to write it than "thru," and so on. All this obviously would save a lot of time. The mileage of extra letters, traditional but unpronounced, on an annual basis, must be considerable. It probably is not fair to ask what we would do with the time saved by cutting them out.

It's probably even more unfair to wonder whether some people would even notice if any changes were made in the spelling rules. Under the present system they go their way unconcerned by the fact that the way they spell and the way the dictionary spells haven't much in common. So a few new rules wouldn't affect them. Individualism, even if you can't spell it correctly, is still a virtue.

Man of Letters

The late George Bernard Shaw was very much interested in this sort of thing. He went so far as to leave a considerable sum of money in his will for development of a new English alphabet, which would do away with "gh's" and "ph's" and other excess weight and boil everything down to a few essentials.

As far as I know the thing has fallen through. Some work was done on the project but there aren't enough people really interested to carry out the reform.

Even with official sanction, the new-fangled way would look "wrong," and folk with the least respect for the current rules would probably be the first to resent it. If determination not to learn to spell the accepted way is one method of demonstrating your independence and your revolt against society, you can't be expected to take kindly to a new system that makes your revolt look faint-hearted.

Horse's Mouth

I mean, if the Concise Oxford, and Webster's and Funk and Wagnall's New Standard, and Collins's and Blackie's and all the other sources pitch in to support a written language that looks like a Grade 2 pupil's best Friday afternoon effort—and could we even include some Grade 2 teachers among the individuals?—there won't be much point in trying to assert yourself by devising your own personal system. You'd be outclassed from the start.

In fact, you might be driven to taking up the style which is now considered correct, as a revolt against the new freedom.

It is surprising to see, from time to time, the number of persons and societies throughout the English-speaking and writing world that are engaged in trying to reform the language. The only way in which they really differ from the rest of us complacent and obedient spellers is in their determination. They are bent on changing the language on purpose. The rest of us, although we may not know it, are slowly changing spelling styles without any definite intention.

Word by Word

If you do not believe this, look at some Shakespeare or Spenser or Chaucer and see what has happened to our language without anybody trying particularly to change it. The changes are still going on, resisted for the most part but slowly being accepted.

A language that does not change will become a tomb for thoughts rather than a vehicle, we are told. But some of the modern developments might remove much of the sting from grammatical death.

Wouldn't a dead language be better than one composed of the new initial-verbiage—the NATO, UNICEF, SHAFEP and VOW types of almost words that are being pushed on us? Or how about the multi-word language, which telescopes various syllables into one indigestible stew—Comintern, Benelux and the Canadian Navy's Comsupac.

Far from holding conferences to plan changes in the language, we should be holding them to plan to save it from the deliberate changers. Praps it ain't to lat.

As Our Readers See It

Silent Night

Christmas time again! Time for "Silent Night."

I wonder if somebody will play or sing this lovely song right this time. So far, I have only heard it butchered all the way through.

It should be sung like this:

First verse pianissimo all through—everybody is asleep, except Mary and Joseph. And they are careful not to wake the Babe. Second verse starts pianissimo: Silent night, holy night. Then crescendo: The shepherds are coming. And then swelling to a strong forte: The angels proclaim the arrival of the Saviour. "Toent es laut von fern und nah." Last verse starts pianissimo again: Silent night, holy night. Then a mezzo-forte to the end.

And this whole song should only be sung on Christmas Eve. Otherwise it loses its charm. For it was born on Christmas Eve in 1818.

Police and Non-Cooperation

Quite recently I read an article in your Weekend magazine, apparently supplied by a top member of the RCMP, in which he complained of the lack of co-operation between the public and police.

I thought the article a very good one and agreed with most of its contents.

I think you will agree with me after reading the following that there are grounds for complaint as to the manner in which police duty is performed in this area.

During the night of November 18, this year, my car was stolen from outside my house. It had been locked and the ignition key removed and at 11 a.m. the following Sunday morning I reported the theft to Saanich police. I gave them all particulars required and they assured me the information would be circulated to all stations and mobile units in the area of Victoria.

I frequently phoned Saanich police for news of my car and was informed everything possible was being done to trace it.

On Sunday, Dec. 3, 14 days after the theft, I decided to phone the RCMP, Victoria, to enquire if they had any news of my car in their area. I was informed that they had no knowledge of the theft of the car and that it was not listed. I supplied them with the necessary particulars and they stated enquiries would be made.

A few minutes later I received a phone call from the RCMP informing me that my car had been impounded at Shawnigan Lake Garage. It had been towed off the highway under the instructions of the police as it had been causing an obstruction to other vehicular traffic. The car had been on the highway up to November 28.

Surely there is something wrong with the police system in this area. In the first place my car theft report had not been circulated. Secondly, the RCMP impounded my car and failed to notify me or the Saanich police that they had taken possession. My name and address was clearly visible inside the car for any officer to see.

In addition to losing a camera and field glasses from the glove compartment I was charged $12.50 towage and garage fees. This expense could have been avoided had the police handled the matter in the proper manner.

As far as I am concerned I don't want to read any more articles by policemen about non-cooperation.

PRESS NOT
AS SOCREDS

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Real Caouette, Quebec leader of the Social Credit party, said Thursday some Quebec newspapers are not reporting the warm reception Social Credit candidates are receiving in Quebec.

Mr. Caouette, a car dealer in this community 310 miles northwest of Montreal, said the results of the Social Credit movement in Quebec have been overwhelming but some newspapers refused to see it.

"The press in general," he said, "is much more sympathetic than the newspapers in my own region."

Try That St. Francis Touch

WHEN I was a very small boy, our house was merry with a large family. Grandparents, an uncle and an aunt lived with us. Income was low and frugality was a constant virtue.

At table my peckish appetite, my inclination to leave on the plate this and that piece of food I didn't like, brought the gentle, reproful, "Waste not, want not." We ate our crusts.

Stott

That type of training dies hard. Fortunately, my appetite has grown robust and a clean plate is my measure of appreciation for good cooking. It helps me to carry on the "Waste not, want not" tradition which I tried to apply to my own youngsters when they were small.

But, of course, you can't be too consistent about these things. You may keep up appearances and enjoy the children to eat their crusts. But if you have a dog in the house, you shouldn't be surprised if the crusts and odd bits of food which don't appeal to childish palates pass surreptitiously by hand from the plate edge to a point above the floor which corresponds exactly to the height of a dog's head.

That has happened so frequently in my home that when I sit to a meal, our spaniel rests her jaws coaxingly on my thigh. And this in spite of the fact that I ordered my children never to table-feed our Susie.

There aren't any children at our table now. But bread still comes with the same amount of crusts—more, in fact, since they quit putting out those twin loaves you could split apart.

And the time is long past since I rejected the idea that eating crusts would make my hair curly. The argument, like the hair, has diminishing weight.

There are so many crusts that even possession of a dog who mustn't be table fed and is, doesn't meet the disposal problem.

Now this would be a simple matter for the ordinary person. He doesn't like crusts so he throws them away. The economic loss is virtually non-existent. It's the sensible thing to do.

But what about the individual raised with an almost Calvinistic abhorrence for discarding food that is edible? What about the man who sees the stern figure of justice or retribution standing before him saying "Waste not, want not" every time he has a guilty idea about what to do with an unwanted crust or a piece of meat that doesn't suit his fancy?

There is a solution, noble in the extreme and twice as hypocritical.

Those who suffer this unfortunate complex about waste need only slip around their shoulders the borrowed cape of St. Francis. This is the season when the feathered folk aren't doing so well acquiring groceries.

Get thee, my friend, an old Jap orange box. Nail it to the clothes-line post. Place the old crusts in the oven to crisp and crumble them in the orange box-cum-feeder. You'll be surprised how busy your winter-beggarly back yard can become.

And when the small guests assemble for dinner, if the spirit moves you, you can go out like St. Francis himself and preach to them. It could be excellent therapy for you.

For me it just comes naturally. What I have to say is usually for the birds anyhow.

Starvation Threatens Nepalese

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

TUKUCHA, Nepal (AP)—Chinese Communists are draining food supplies from the high Himalayan valleys of Nepal. As a result thousands of Tibetan refugees in Nepal face acute hunger this winter.

In the last year the Chinese in Tibet have more than doubled the prices they pay for wheat, clothes and grain from the Thakkhola area of Nepal. As a result, grain that is needed here is being carried north on mules, yaks and goats.

There is no famine in Thakkhola yet, but the food situation is becoming more critical for many of the 9,000 Tibetan refugees as winter snows begin to sweep in.

Thakkhola is an area of Nepal 125 miles northwest of Katmandu. It consists of the upper reaches of the Kali Gandak River. The area runs north from the world's deepest river gorge, between the Dhaulagiri and Annapurna Mountains, to the Mustang area of Nepal, projecting into western Tibet.

DIFFICULT TERRAIN

Thakkhola traditionally has been one of the main trade routes between Nepal and Tibet despite the arduous approach. The gorge between the 26,000-foot mountains can be traversed only by humans. The trail is too difficult even for the sure-footed mountain mules that carry freight in other parts of the Himalayas.

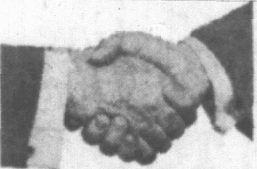

To the north, animals cross a 15,000-foot pass into Tibet, making that way easier and giving Thakkhola a natural orientation toward the Roof of the World.

Little patches of agricultural land, where glacial water irrigates the crops, enable Thakkhola to feed itself. It could feed the refugees too if the produce was left here.

In the opinion of a Buddhist lama in Tukucha, trade centre of the area, the Chinese are paying high prices to create hardship for Tibetans who have fled here. Crops in Tibet have been reported adequate, although there is some hunger in the area of Tibet east of here as the result of Chinese export of grain to central China.

Whatever the reason, the International Red Cross has had to bring food into Thakkhola from the south to feed the Tibetan refugees.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Barbara's Big Battle

LONDON—It's all part of this changing Britain.

Workmen are now busy all over the country removing the penny-in-the-slot turnstiles from the entrances of women's public conveniences.

Reburn

It is the result of a lengthy campaign waged by Mrs. Barbara Castle, Labor MP.

She took up the cudgels on behalf of those who maintained that they were a menace to pregnant and disabled women, not to mention others who had suffered the embarassment of being trapped in the turnstiles.

She has been so persistent—to the point of demonstrations on television of the hazards of the ladies' turnstiles—that Dr. Charles Hill, minister of housing and local government, had no option but to circularize all the local authorities and tell them to get rid of them—pronto.

This successful blow struck for feminine freedom is not without its financial aspect. The local councils are going to lose a worthwhile source of revenue.

Even in a small seaside resort like St. Ives, Cornwall, for instance, the turnstile turnover represented a useful $24,000 a year.

SPEED-UP NEEDED

Talkative Delegates Slow UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A move is afoot to trim down UN oratory before the General Assembly struggles on its own words.

With the world organization more than double its original size and its agenda growing bulkier each year, the assembly is finding it impossible to wade through the work load in the period to which it would like to confine the assembly, from mid-September to Christmas.

FEWER SPEECHES

Diplomats and UN secretariat officials have offered various plans to speed the session, but they all agree on one point — shorter and fewer speeches. The late Dag Hammarskjöld suggested last year that much time could be saved if delegates spoke by regions instead of by country.

One proposal would limit major speeches to one hour and subsequent interventions to 20 minutes.

Quebec Publisher L. Carrier Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Louis Carrier of Montreal, journalist, lecturer, publisher and collector of Canadiana, died Thursday at the age of 63.

He was known particularly for research into the history of the arts and crafts of French Canada.

Born in Levis, Que., his journalistic experience was spread over the Quebec Telegraph and the Montreal Gazette and the Montreal Star.

He founded the Mercury Press and became a successful book publisher. At one time, he was correspondent for the New York Times, general manager of Le Canada, and a consultant for Reader's Digest when it began printing in French.

Fluorides Tried Then Approved

RENFREW, Ont. (CP) — Residents of this Ottawa Valley town voted 1,434 to 1,342 Thursday in favor of fluoridating the water supply.

It was a close win for a town of 8,500 residents who drank fluoridated water for three months without knowing it.

In 1955 the council bought $2,500 worth of equipment to fluoridate the water following a recommendation from the board of health. The equipment was used for three months before the public was told. The process was discontinued following protests.

Industrials Drop Further at Toronto

Industrials and speculative trading and mining issues were quiet and lower on the stock exchange today.

The decline was led in the main by banks, utilities and oils with papers lending an assist. Fractional losses predominated.

Imperial Bank of Commerce, Royal and Toronto-Dominion all dropped in the 1/4 to 1/2 range, while Shawinigan, Union Gas and Calgary Power all fell 1/4 among utilities.

In oils and carriers, Alberta Gas Trunk A, Canadian Husky and Pembina all fell as much as 1/2.

Speculators were generally poor.

The New York market was mixed under slow trading.

AT TORONTO the senior base metals list was ahead with Falconbridge up 1/4 and Ventures 1/2. Denison gained 1/4 and Steep Rock 10 cents.

Gold trading was light and sporadic with McIntyre Porcupine up 1/4 and Hollinger 1/2.

Western oil trade was steady in the senior list with Dome Petroleum and Home A and B all off as much as 1/4.

AT NEW YORK among Canadian issues, McIntyre Porcupine advanced 1/4, Granby Mining 1/4 and International Nickel 1/4. Walker Gooderham lost 1/4, and Dome Mines was up 1/4.

Prices on the American exchange moved irregularly higher. Canadian Marconi rose 1/4 and Jupiter Oils was up 1/4. Shawinigan declined 1/4.

AT MONTREAL industrial stocks remained mixed in action.

IMPORTS REACH RECORD LEVELS

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian States in October rose 23 per cent in value to $373,900,000 in October, due partly to the from $304,100,000. This was lower external value of the due partly to $16,000,000 in aircraft imports under mutual aid deals.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has valued October imports at $358,000,000, a sharp 24.7-per-cent rise from $447,400,000 in October last year.

This helped push this year's 10-month import total up to $4,751,300,000, a gain of 4.5 per cent from $4,548,800,000 in the same period of 1960.

In both October and the 10-month period, imports from all geographic areas increased.

Imports from the United Kingdom soared by nearly one-third—32 per cent—to $54,100,000 from $41,000,000 a year earlier, while those from the rest of the Commonwealth went up 15.7 per cent to $28,000,000 from $24,200,000.

BOY CHARGES NEGLIGENCE TO CITY

Skin Divers Checked Out Lake Hazards, Court Told

Skin divers regularly explore the bottom of Beaver Lake for broken bottles, tree stumps and any obstacles likely to cause injury to bathers, it was stated in B.C. Supreme Court here Thursday afternoon.

Employees of Victoria city parks branch testified that every precaution was taken to avoid bathing accidents during the summer season. They were called by Lloyd McKenzie, QC, during the hearing of an action for damages against the city of Victoria by 15-year-old Marcus Gallard of 3932 Cumberland Road, Saanich.

STUMBLER

Marcus sustained severe injuries to his right hand and wrist when he stumbled over underwater tree stumps while bathing at Beaver Lake on July 12, 1960.

Through his father, William Jack Gallard, he sued the city for special damages of $383 for hospital expenses, including two operations, and unstated general damages for pain and suffering caused.

His counsel, Gerald Lauder, claimed the city was "negligent" in allowing tree stumps to remain under water at the beach and in not posting warning signs.

PRECAUTIONS

Mr. McKenzie argued that all reasonable precautions were taken.

City parks employee Robert Jackson emphasized the precautions taken both by skin divers and lifeguards at Beaver Lake.

"How does this beach compare with other beaches as regards safety?" asked Mr. McKenzie.

"I would say it is a pretty good beach," Mr. Jackson replied.

INSPECTED

Ronald Edwards, another parks employee, said the beach was regularly inspected for obstacles and underwater tree stumps were marked with red buoys.

Marcus Gallard told the court he stumbled on some hidden stumps and in falling injured his hand and wrist on a jagged stump below the surface. He was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital for emergency treatment.

His father, William Gallard, said he went down to the beach the day after the accident and took a number of photographs. These were produced in court.

"I saw no lifeguard or any warning signs," he said. The hearing is continuing.

GREEN TELLS NATO NOT TO BECOME INVOLVED

Canada Backs U.S. on UN's Katanga Action

PARIS (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green says Canada supports the United States position of continued United Nations action in Katanga province until "minimum objectives" are attained. The United Nations is the cornerstone of Canadian foreign policy, Green told the NATO ministerial council Thursday, and Canada is backing the UN Congo campaign although it feels the fighting is coming rather close to war. Authoritative sources said Green sought to dispel the impression that the U.S. was alone among NATO countries in its Congo stand.

The Canadian minister received strong backing from Foreign Minister Halvard Lange of Norway in an attempt to make it clear there is "no blanket opposition" to UN policy in The Congo. Green emphasized that the Congo operation is the business of the UN and that "NATO as a bloc" should not become involved in UN matters.

Britain differed from the U.S. on the matter of timing of a cease-fire. Britain called for an immediate cease-fire, while the U.S. wanted UN forces to be in an advanced position before an end to hostilities is agreed upon.

U.S. Tariff Barriers Must Fall

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Undersecretary of Commerce Edward Gudeman told a Congressional subcommittee Thursday that it would be "quite disastrous to our economy" if President Kennedy fails to get broad tariff-cutting authority to deal with the European Common Market.

Gudeman said the United States cannot take care of its growing population and maintain a high standard of living if a high tariff wall is built around the 50 states. He said he also couldn't conceive of how there could be full employment if tariff barriers are kept.

The hearings are a preview of the fight expected when the president asks Congress next year for a liberalized trade policy.

Rep. Carl Albert, the assistant Democratic floor leader, predicted that "with the proper selling job" Kennedy will win Congressional approval of his new foreign trade policies.

Albert said Congress might want to make some changes in Kennedy's tariff-cutting proposals. But he said that generally speaking, the program will go through.

Ontario Tory Accused Of Improper Dealings

TORONTO (CP)—A hushed Ontario legislature heard one of its members accuse another Thursday night of being a partner in a firm paid $237,955 by the provincial government—an offence punishable by a heavy fine and expulsion from the legislature.

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) made the accusation against John Arthur Fullerton (PC—Algoma-Manitoulin), who was not present during the speech.

Premier Roberts replied in a low voice: "I will investigate these matters . . . I had no idea anything like this had occurred. I will examine them very carefully and decide what action to take."

Mr. Fullerton said outside the legislature Mr. Sopha made "accusations which are untrue, as far as I can see by press reports. But I'd like to see Hansard . . . before making a statement."

Mr. Sopha, a Sudbury lawyer, told the legislature that in his opinion section nine of the Legislative Assembly Act had been violated. A member found guilty of an offence under the section is liable for a fine of $2,000 for every day he sits in the House after the offence takes place and expulsion from the legislature.

The section forbids anyone to sit or vote in the legislature who has, directly or indirectly, any contract with the government or a government department.

Mr. Sopha read from photostatic copies of documents which said John A. Fullerton, a Thessalon merchant, was a partner in the firm of Mantane Contracting Company from May 10, 1949, until resigning as a director October 16, 1951.

The Liberal backbencher said Mantane Contracting Company was among various private loggers given the right to go into a fire-ravaged area in the Northern Ontario district of Algoma in 1949 and 1950 to salvage logs and pulpwood.

Listing dates and amounts individually, he said Mantane Contracting Company was paid $237,955 from September 19, 1949, to August 25, 1950.

In addition, he said, the government advanced $160,728 to the firm from December 16, 1949, to September 6, 1950, which was later returned to the government, "apparently after the company sold the salvage pulpwood."

Mr. Sopha said there was also "a suggestion—an inference," that the firm was "connected" with a company called Mantane Logging Registered, which had been paid $1,039,293 by the government between December 13, 1949, and August 25, 1950.

If only the firm of Mantane Contracting Company was involved, the sum at stake was close to $500,000, Mr. Sopha said. But "if there be a connection between Mantane Logging Registered and Mantane Contracting Limited . . . then the sum is close to $1,500,000."

SIDELINE SLANTS BY Doug Peden

Perhaps if Sgt. Ed Dixon hadn't been standing sternly by his right shoulder, L-Cpl. Lawrence Cardinal might have had a different answer when asked if he liked boxing.

"Well," he said slowly, with a half-grin and a cautious glance at the muscular physical training instructor, who is also his tutor in fisticuffs, "I guess so."

Whether or not the 25-year-old PPCLI puncher, who has held the Canadian army middleweight crown for three years, actually enjoys his exertions in the manly art may be a matter for debate. But there is no doubt that Dixon thinks Larry is a dandy with the padded mittens.

"He is a terrific hitter and has fast hands," extolled Dixon. "He has a terrific record. I think he may be the best amateur middleweight in Canada."

The record is indeed a good one. In approximately 30 fights, the wavy-haired native of Truman, Alta., has lost just three decisions, all to highly-rated opponents. Two of the losses came in the final round of Canadian championships, including a 1958 squeaker with Vancouver's sweet-swinging Jimmy Walters.

The other, in the final for the Pan-American Games title at Mexico City in 1958, had a touch of heartbreak that Cardinal will probably never forget.

"It was so close," said Dixon, "that it was first announced that Cardinal had won the diamond belt. Then the announcer had to go down to the dressing room and tell Cardinal he had made a mistake."

Ed May Have More Proof Saturday

Sgt. Ed hopes to produce more proof of Larry's talents Saturday night, when the PPCLI Boxing Club stages its first fight card of the season. Cardinal is due to swap leather with the reigning Canadian middleweight king, Vancouver's Egon Bretzner.

Dixon is a busy man in a busy place. He calls the shots in the perspiration and muscle factory known to civilians as the Work Point Barracks gymnasium. Soldiers, it is said, have other names for it.

"We have 11 bouts lined up for Saturday and they should be good ones," he said Thursday. "We expect 10 fighters from Vancouver and one from Chemainus. We start at 8 sharp."

"They'll get good opposition from our boys. We have 20 men from the battalion and one former soldier (Danny MacDonald) in training with our club. Would you like to see some of them working out?"

Hopes to Place Boys on B.E.G. Team

Spine straight, shoulders back in training-manual style, Sgt. Ed quick-stepped across the gymnasium floor while soldiers in sneakers pounded the hardwood in hectic volleyball games on the right and left flanks. He opened a door to a long narrow room and announced: "This is the sweat pit."

There was visible evidence of how the place got its name as nine young men pranced and snorted through various methods of pugilistic practice. Two were beating a rat-tat tattoo on light bags, one was pounding a heavy bag, others were sharpening timing in light-punching sparring sessions.

Dixon likes them all and hopes two or three will win trips to the 1962 British Empire Games at Perth, Australia, when combined Dominion championships and B.E.G. trials are held next September, probably in Victoria. But it was not hard to guess that his biggest hopes rest on Cardinal and Pte. Fred Francis, "both as good as any I've handled."

Hailing from Port aux Basques, Nfld., Francis, 21 and 139 pounds, is constructed the way books describe a boxer and looks like a fine prospect. He started fighting last year and picked up tricks fast enough to win the Canadian army light-welter crown.

One More Year Enough for Larry

"Francis didn't know anything when he came to us," said Dixon, "but he's a natural. I think he has great possibilities. He's a good in-fighter and hits like a middleweight. We have hopes of entering him in the Dominion championships."

Francis doesn't know how long he'll stick with boxing, but Cardinal is nearing the end of his cauliflower career. A mild-mannered man if you happen to meet him when he isn't wearing gloves, Larry started tossing leather five years ago. "They wanted people to volunteer for boxing, so I volunteered," and has no professional ambitions.

"I'm too old to think of turning pro," he says. "I think this is my last year and I'd like to finish with a trip to the Empire Games. I have to start working to be a physical training instructor."

"He has passed a Group II course and is recommended for a Group III course next year," explained Dixon. "When he passes that he'll be qualified as a PTI in the Canadian army."

"And then," quipped Cardinal with a meaningful glance at Sgt. Ed, "I'll be able to stand around and make other people do the work."

Shooters Take Aim At Christmas Birds

It will be a big weekend for shotgun and rifle enthusiasts. Christmas turkeys and hams will be the targets for both experts and novices in the art of trigger-pulling as outdoors clubs stage annual shoots.

Firefighters Place Three

Serving both riflemen and scattergunners will be the shoot at the Lutton grounds of the South Vancouver Island Rangers, who will feature trap, target and running-deer events. Shooting goes Sunday from 9 a.m. until dusk and shooters should be comfortable between turns on the firing line in the Rangers' enclosed barbecue area.

Shotguns will be barking on Saturday and Sunday at the Victoria Gun Club at Albert Head. It will be bird-busting on both trap and skeet ranges as shooting on both days goes from 10 a.m. until dusk.

Cowichan Fish and Game Association is also holding a two-day shoot. Competitions are planned for riflemen, who may use any type of rifle, except .22 calibre, and any variety of sights.

In another exhibition at Heywood Avenue Park in Victoria, Esquimalt of the District League will play William Head of the Combination League Sunday.

Joe Ryan Awaits Crime Probe Outcome

EDMONTON (CP)—Joe Ryan, general manager of Edmonton Eskimos football club, said Thursday he will await the outcome of royal commission investigation into crime in Ontario before taking any legal action on allegations made against him.

Ryan made the statement in an interview following his return from a football scouting trip in the United States.

Before he made the trip, Ryan threatened to sue Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer for $1,000,000 if he repeated, outside the immunity of the legislature, charges made in a speech to the legislature November 29.

In the speech, Wintermeyer said Ryan was associated with a hunting camp in northern Ontario which catered to United States gangsters.

"As far as the camp is concerned," Ryan said, "it is a commercial enterprise. People who visit there usually stay at one of Toronto's leading hotels on their way to and from it. The hotel doesn't in-

'The Sky's the Limit'—Browns Try for Davis

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Browns of the National Football League want all-America Ernie Davis so badly they will spare no expense or effort to sign him.

They acquired the rights to negotiate with the great Syracuse University halfback in a daring trade Thursday with the Washington Redskins. The Browns gave halfback Bobby Mitchell, who formed half of one of the most explosive running combinations in United States professional football, to the Redskins, plus the rights to Redskin, plus the rights to a speedy halfback from Western Illinois University, was picked by the Browns on the first round of the NFL draft.

Davis, winner of the Heisman Trophy as the outstanding United States college player this year, has been drafted by Buffalo Bills, of the rival American League, but Art Modell, chairman of the board of the Cleveland club, is "confident that Ernie will sign with us." Modell said the Browns will spare no expense or effort to get him.

BROWN, DAVIS PAIRS
The Browns may have the inside track with the six-foot-two, 219-pound ace because of fullback Jim Brown, the other half of the Browns' great running duo. It was on Brown's advice that Davis went to Syracuse—where Davis broke several records Brown had left behind.

Ralph C. Wilson, Jr., owner of the Bills, says he will keep trying to get Davis' signature on a contract.

Davis said he has "not had time to sit down and think about what would be advantageous to me. I hope to make a decision in three weeks."

While the Browns and Redskins were saying they had traded the rights to Davis and Jackson, plus a "veteran player from the active 1961 Cleveland roster to be mutually decided upon by Feb. 1," neither party would say Mitchell was involved.

A reliable source told The Associated Press the veteran involved was Mitchell, on army duty until next October. Mitchell has been getting away from army camp on weekend passes to play with the Browns.

A Browns' spokesman said the deal was worked out with Washington prior to the NFL draft last week. Washington, getting first pick of the college talent in the U.S., grabbed Davis. When the Browns' turn came, they picked Jackson for Washington.

Jackson also was drafted by an AFL team—Boston Patriots. "It will be up to Washington to sign him next year after the track ace finishes the spring sports campaign."

If Cleveland-Washington fail to sign Davis and Jackson, the trade still goes through. Mitchell is Washington property.

Robinson, voted the circuit's most valuable player last month, collected 333 total bases in 545 times at bat for a .611 slugging mark. Orlando Cepeda of the San Francisco Giants was the runner-up with a .609 average.

Hank Aaron of Milwaukee Braves had the most total bases for the third consecutive season 358, but finished third in the slugging competition with .594. He was followed by Willie Mays, San Francisco .584, Dick Stuart, Pittsburgh .581, George Altman, Chicago .560 and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, the batting champion, .559.

Robinson also received the most intentional walks, 23. San Francisco compiled the highest team slugging percentage, .423. Then came Cincinnati .421, Chicago .418 and Milwaukee .415. Los Angeles batters received the most walks, 596, while the clubs' hitters fanned the most times, 1,627.

Five Towns Make Bid For Burned-Out Club
SASKATOON (CP)—A special Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League meeting is to be held Sunday to decide which of five centres takes over the franchise of the burned-out Prince Albert Minors.

League commissioner Frank Boucher said today that sincere bids to take over the team have been received from Lloydminster, Unity, Rosetown, Melville and Dauphin, Man.

He said all league members would have a hand in determining the new home for Minors at the Sunday meeting. Fire damaged the Prince Albert arena during a game Tuesday night and Minto manager-owner Steve Ruznisky said Wednesday:

"The team won't be playing in Prince Albert any more and that's that. If we can't play elsewhere, we won't be playing at all."

He said the fire left the club with "no dressing rooms, wash room facilities, referees' rooms or anything in the north end. Furthermore, The seats are all leed up."

Maris had a 30-minute salary chat early Thursday with Roy Hamey, general manager of the Yankees, but the meeting ended in an amicable impasse.

Terry Closing In On Shutout Mark

Red Wing Ace Gets No. 87 Against Bruins

Terry Sawchuk is nibbling away at one of the National Hockey League's oldest records.

Sawchuk got his 87th shutout in 12 seasons Thursday night as he led Detroit Red Wings to a 5-0 rout of Boston Bruins in the league's only scheduled game at Detroit.

That leaves him only seven shutouts behind the all-time mark set by George Hainsworth in 10½ seasons with Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs during the 1920s and 30s.

Sawchuk, who'll be 32 later this month, performed brilliantly Thursday night, although he hardly was threatened by the cellar-dwelling Bruins. He only had to make 21 saves.

ROUGH ON CHADWICK

It was his fourth shutout this season, two more than recorded by any other NHL goalie, even though he has been rested for five of the Wings' 28 games.

While Sawchuk was having a relatively easy night, the Wings, now unbeaten in five games, gave substitute Boston goalie Ed Chadwick a rough time.

They tested Chadwick, subbing for rookie Don Head, 36 times. Four of their goals came during a 12-minute span during the second period.

Norm Ullman scored two of Detroit's goals, his 10th and 11th of the season. Gordie Howe, Eddie Litzenberger and rookie Bruce MacGregor got the others.

As it turned out, Howe's goal at 12:06 of the first period was all the Red Wings needed.

Howe's goal was his 13th of the season, leaving him 62 behind the all-time mark of 544 set by Maurice (Rocket) Richard, of the Canadiens.

PLANTE CLOSEST

The win stretched the Wings' fourth-place edge over the Stanley Cup champion Chicago Black Hawks to three points. Detroit has won four times—twice against the Hawks—and tied once in its last five starts.

The Bruins have only one win in their last 13.

Sawchuk doesn't pick any favorites for his shutouts. His four goose eggs this season have come against different clubs—New York, Montreal, Chicago and the Bruins.

His total of 87 puts him far ahead of other active regular netminders. Montreal's Jacques Plante is closest to him with 51. Glenn Hall, of Chicago, has 39, while Lorne (Gump) Worsley, of the Rangers has 21 and Johnny Bower, of Toronto, 16.

Head has one for the Bruins.

YANKEES' ROGER MARIS MALE ATHLETE OF YEAR

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Maris of New York Yankees, whose dramatic pursuit of Babe Ruth's home-run record enthralled the baseball world, is The Associated Press male athlete of the year for 1961.

The outfielder, who hit 61 homers, a record for a single season, was the overwhelming choice in the balloting by 253 sports writers and broadcasters in the annual AP poll.

Paul Hornung, Green Bay's outstanding half-back, was second, and Warren Spahn, Milwaukee's veteran southpaw pitcher, third. They were followed by Ernie Davis, all-America halfback from Syracuse, and Mickey Mantle, Maris' slugging teammate.

Laycoe Scores On McVie Deal

By The Canadian Press
Coach Hal Laycoe of Portland Buckaroos made what he considered a sound deal last October when he traded a promising defenceman for forward Tom McVie from Seattle Totems.

Laycoe has never regretted the move. McVie's play with the Buckaroos has been nothing short of sensational.

McVie scored the winning goal Thursday night, his 22nd tally in 26 games, as Portland edged Los Angeles Blades 4-3.

CURLERS' CORNER

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The Toronto Globe and Mail went to work on curlers earlier this week by refusing to carry results of a major bonspiel in the Ontario capital. The reason, said sports editor Jim Vipond, was because the paper knew of at least one score that had been changed to represent a closer match than had actually occurred.

Vipond merely took the dust off an item that has long been a source of annoyance to newspapermen; that of failing to report the proper score.

Many curlers still feel there's nothing wrong in changing the score of a match. Renegades insist it prevents the embarrassment of losers in one-sided matches. After all, they say, "it's not the score but the result that counts."

If New York Yankees bombed Kansas City 17-1 in a baseball game, or if Toronto Maple Leafs raked the Boston Bruins 9-2 in a National Hockey League game, what would these same men say if the papers recorded the scores as being 3-2 or 2-1?

For that reason, newspapermen are particularly sensitive to incorrect scores appearing in print. Curling wants publicity, but many in its ranks should mature if they expect to retain support from the press.

Reported Vipond: "It's not the score but the result that counts" is the amazing logic of grown men who won't accept the fact that they are lying.

A lot of us agree with brother Vipond. Fortunately, the men who throw rocks in the Victoria Curling Club's regular league won't have to squirm uneasily at this. One of the innovations in league play this season is a prize to the rink that scores the most points in its square.

All scores being reported in the regular VCC leagues, I am happy to say, are most factual. It should be that way with or without a prize at stake.

Vic High Survives Opening Hurdle

A Victoria High quartet skipped by Bob McPherson went through the first step of high school boys' playdowns in unbeaten fashion and now will advance to the South Island finals along with rinks from Esquimalt and Duncan.

Winners of the southern playdowns meet the northern champions in a best-of-three series for the Island title. The Island finals will be played in Victoria Jan. 13-14.

McPherson has Jack Trueman playing third, Larry Cole at second and Barry Harvey leading.

The Vic foursome and other rinks skipped by Bob Gallagher, Dennis Campbell and Gary Robertson have entered the third annual Pacific Coast Curling Association's boys' bonspiel at Vancouver. Won by Victoria rinks the first two years, the event will be run off Dec. 27-29.

SWEETING LOOSE STRAWS: A ladies' rink is reported to have defaulted a game in VCC playdowns. If the same thing occurred in men's playdowns, the rink defaulting would not be allowed back into Brier playdowns the following year. It's a Dominion Curling Association ruling.

Harold Hole's "Pacific Meat" rink scored a seven-ender this week to win, of all things, a steak dinner.

If it's another firm's meat, the boys wonder, will Harold and his gang still eat the free steaks?

Matt Baldwin, whose articles appear every Saturday in The Times, turned author this year. So, too, did James McKee and Regina's Ernie Richardson. Ken Watson started the trend, but if everybody is gonna write, who's going to stay in the rinks?

Victoria Club's annual turkey shoot, always a popular affair, comes up Saturday. And next Monday is the entry deadline for the Esquimalt Club's Christmas Bonspiel, scheduled Dec. 26-30. Esquimalt's 'spiel is restricted to their own members, and it's a mixed event.

"Buy by the bulk" may be Norah Dunstan's motto. Playing a game against Mrs. Rene Robbins' rink at VCC recently, Mrs. Dunstan saw her opponent score singles on the first, second, fourth, fifth, seventh, eighth and ninth ends.

Mrs. Dunstan counted six on the third, four on the sixth end and one on the last end to win easily.

The big event on the local curling calendar this season will be the first annual Pacific Coast Curling Association bonspiel. It will be held early in February and feelers have already been received from rinks in San Francisco and Seattle.

The prize list will be the biggest ever offered here. A limit of 40 rinks will be imposed on Duncan's 10th annual bonspiel, Jan. 11-14.

FOR INGO'S MONEY

Tax Collector Starts Looking

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The United States government plans to collect $1,009,801 of Ingemar Johansson's money, but there's some question as to where the money is coming from.

A federal judge, ruling that Ingo owes the money to the internal revenue department as income tax, ordered two organizations Thursday to pay over monies they hold for the Swedish fighter.

Feature Sports Incorporated, which handled promotion for Johansson's title fights with Floyd Patterson, of New York, was directed to account for and turn over to the government the funds it holds from Johansson's purses.

TelePrompTer Incorporated was ordered to turn over a proportionate share of any receipts it holds from Ingo's earnings.

In New York, Tom Bolan, former treasurer of Feature Sports Incorporated, said his organization has $734,000 in escrow from Johansson's earnings but already has paid Johansson $550,000.

'NOT US' TelePrompTer President Irving Kahn said his organization has none of Ingo's money. He said it was turned over to Feature Sports.

The decision in the tax liability case was made by Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. of Montgomery, Ala.

Johansson disowned Johansson's claim that Swiss residence and business interests make him immune to paying U.S. income tax. The judge said Johansson made only occasional trips to Switzerland. He also said that Soanart, S. A., Johansson's corporation, was a sham by which the boxer hoped to avoid U.S. taxes.

In Stockholm, Johansson said today he may never again box in the United States.

Commenting on the judgment, Johansson said he first of all will talk to his lawyers before he makes any further statement, adding:

"I might have a chance to appeal against the ruling, but should this not be the case I will never more box in the United States."

Stan Stands Out CHILLIWACK (CP)—New Westminster Royals trounced Chilliwack Chiefs for the second night in a row Thursday to take a 13-2 Mainland Junior Hockey League decision. Stan Osadczuk was high man for Royals, with six goals.

Fergie to Altar MONTREAL (CP)—Elmer Ferguson, 76, veteran Montreal sports writer, was married Thursday in Notre Dame des Neiges Church to the former Jacqueline Lacroix of Montreal. The marriage was the second for both. Ferguson's first wife died in 1934 and the bride was a widow.

PORT ARTHUR 'BRUTES' CITED BY CZECH PRESS

PRAGUE (Reuters)—Czech newspapers made some blunt comments Thursday about the Port Arthur Bearcats, who lost 2-1 to Czechoslovakia in Bratislava Wednesday night.

The Communist Party newspaper Rude Bravo said "the game was not up to expectation," and "the Canadians were rough and at times dirty."

Lidova Democraie, the people's party newspaper, said the Canadians excelled in position play and defence but "it is to be regretted that in Bratislava they spoiled the game by their mean and at times dangerous play."

Ceskoslovensky Sport said the Bearcats were in very good physical condition and were able to attack their opponents on almost every part of the rink. But it added: "Of course, the kind of hockey we are accustomed to seeing—perfect passing and shooting—was lacking in the Canadians."

WEATHER PRODUCES MEMORABLE VINTAGES

'61 Great Year for French Wine

PARIS (Reuters) — French wine-lovers are already smacking their lips at the prospect of 1961 being one of the great vintage years of history.

Reports from all over France indicate that practically every area, from the chalky soil of the champagne country in the north-east to the rich, rolling hills of Burgundy, have produced a vintage to be remembered.

The weather is the main reason for the high quality of this year's crop. The summer was moderately dry, with plenty of sunshine to bring the grapes slowly to the maturity required for the best wines.

In Burgundy, the red wine will be of "extraordinary high quality, comparable with those of 1911 and 1913," according to producers.

In the Rhone Valley the vintage is "full bodied and as good as 1957."

The dry white wines of Alsace—Traminer and Riesling—similar in taste to the Rhine wines of Germany, are also expected to be of top quality.

In the southwest the red wines of Bordeaux, the semi-dry white wine, Entre Deux Meris of Dordogne, and the sweet sauternes, are reported to be as good as their great year of 1921.

Champagne is also expected to be of best quality with color, sparkle and taste as good as any year in the past.

One snag, however, is that this year's output is low and as a consequence retail home prices will rise as much as 33 per cent for some grades. Abroad the rise will not be so high.

Contract May Clear Status Of BCE Group

Future status of 1,600 B.C. Electric Co. office employees in status of government takeover may be made clearer with bargaining on a 1962 contract opening next week.

The existing contract with B.C. Electric Office Employees' Association, Local 300—including 150 members on Vancouver Island—was made while the company was privately owned.

It expires Dec. 31 and the union, which bargains jointly with Office Employees' International Union, Local 378—covering mainland employees of the company—has made its new contract proposals by letter.

First bargaining session is set for Wednesday, business agent Bill Swanson said today.

PREDICT CHANGES

The provincial government has assured the union that its status would be respected, but it has announced "certain changes" would become effective Jan. 1.

Unilateral change in the agreement is possible with expiry of the contract Dec. 31.

By terms of the Power Act, Labor Relations Act and Interpretation Act, the government is not bound by any such contract, the Labor Relations Board has found.

In other words, the effect of a relationship between company (government) and union is by gentleman's agreement.

Open House Marks Florist Firm's 70th Birthday

Open house and a birthday party today mark the 70th anniversary of Victoria's oldest florist business, Woodward's, at 619 Fort.

Established by A. J. Woodward of Bedfordshire, England, at the present location, the firm is also one of the oldest florist wholesale houses on the Pacific Coast and at one time shipped as far as California.

Mr. Woodward also designed many of Victoria's oldest gardens.

The store is now under the management of Lawrence Woodward and employs eight florists.

Veteran Canadian Performer Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Charles G. Fletcher, one of Canada's most famous theatrical performers at the turn of the century, died last week in a Toronto nursing home.

Mr. Fletcher, 80, was a native of Toronto. He was a member of the original New York company of Victor Herbert's The Red Mill with Montgomery and Stone before playing in the original cast of the first North American production of Franz Lehár's The Merry Widow.

He later entered dramatic stock, for 12 years performing in Toronto with the Vaughan Glaser Players. He retired in 1935.

U.S. Envoy Intervenes In India-Goa Dispute

$170,000 ALLOCATED TO REBUILD VILLAGE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government will spend at least $170,000 to move and rebuild the Nass River Indian fishing village at Alyansh where 100 inhabitants were left homeless when floods struck last October. This was disclosed yesterday in a letter to the United Fishermen's and Allied Workers' Union from Neil Crawford, executive secretary to Prime Minister Diefenbaker. The union, to which most of the Indian fishermen belong, had asked Ottawa to aid the village of Alyansh and the nearby village of Greenville, also struck by the floods. A total of 17 homes were swept away at Alyansh and many damaged at Greenville.

HAZARDOUS ROUTE

First-Hand Look By Commissioner

An Indian commissioner has flown to the Nass River in northern British Columbia to inspect flood damage to two Indian villages and to discuss federal relief for destitute bands in the area.

J. V. Boys, formerly Indian commissioner at Duncan, will also discuss plans for relocating the villages to higher ground.

Travellers from the Nass River country reported here this week that about 100 Indians left homeless by floods two months ago are suffering severe hardships as a result of an abnormally cold winter.

They said they found Indians, including children, living in tents at Alyansh and Greenville. There was five feet of snow on the ground.

The remaining members of the band, they said, are living in overcrowded conditions in the homes of relatives and friends.

W. J. Gregory, assistant federal Indian commissioner, said he had no knowledge that some Indians are living in tents.

"I do know the Indians asked us to delay rebuilding their village until they had decided whether they would relocate to higher ground," he said. "As far as I know, they are living with relatives."

He said the government is doing all it can to assist the destitute bands.

Meanwhile, a Victorian who visited the Indian villages last year said Mr. Boys will have difficulty contacting the Indians because the devastated riverside villages are situated in a remote area.

"It's not even easy to fly in there, especially in winter," said Miss Joanna R. Wright, director of B.C. Indian Advisory Act.

HAZARDOUS ROUTE

The overland route to the village, she said, is so hazardous and unpredictable that travellers are warned its responsibility if they run into trouble.

"We travelled along muddy roads, including an ancient lava bed with cracks," she said. "Our radio broke down and when we reached a spot on the bank of the river opposite the village we were obliged to make smoke signals to attract the Indians."

She described the Indians as one of the sturdiest and finest people she has ever met.

"Their villages were well organized," she said. "They had a first class school, including a hospital. The children were proud of their school. It was spotless."

Tax Increase Feared

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government Thursday sent Congress a record budget of almost $1,000,000,000 and stepped up work on a new tax law to provide the extra money. Income tax increases of up to 30 per cent were reported under consideration. Some observers predicted a rise in the cost of living.

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — United States Ambassador John K. Galbraith called on Prime Minister Nehru today in an attempt to head off a threatened war between India and Portugal over the Portuguese enclave of Goa.

Galbraith's call on the Indian leader came as authoritative sources here disclosed that President Kennedy had written to Nehru earlier this week expressing American hope that there will be no war over the tiny enclave on the Indian west coast.

Galbraith, a leading economist, who was born near St. Thomas, Ont., also called on a high official in India's external affairs ministry Thursday to repeat the hope that armed action can be avoided.

India already has 30,000 troops ready for action and there were persistent reports here that they may attempt to take over Goa within the next few days.

The Bombay weekly newspaper Blitz, which has close links with Indian Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon, said today that Indian forces will march into Goa this weekend. It said the Indian foreign affairs committee had decided to strike with all the military force requisite to a dangerous situation.

The United States embassy in New Delhi said Washington also was putting pressure on Portugal over Goa, although the extent of the pressure and its nature were not disclosed.

NEW YORK (AP) — A bandit trio, two carrying pistols and one a sawed-off shotgun, boarded a Brooklyn bus Thursday and robbed a pair of payroll guards of $25,000. No other passengers were on the bus at the time.

More Timid? No! Just More Careful

Discussing world problems is one thing, trying to solve them another. John F. Kennedy, after making the transition from candidate to president, was not the first to discover this truism — though his lesson may have been unusually dramatic. This is the last of three articles.

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON (AP)—During his presidential campaign John F. Kennedy often pointed out that, while the Republicans were in control of the White House, the Iron Curtain had been rolled down in once friendly Cuba.
"If you can't stand up to Castro," Kennedy said in Johnstown, Pa., "how can you be expected to stand up to Khrushchev?"
This is repeated not as a re-proof — if presidents were judged by their campaign talk they would all be failures — but as an illustration of how far Kennedy may have underestimated the difficulties in

A man close to Kennedy insists the answer is no, but that he has made sure it never happens again.

Those around Kennedy maintain the U.S. is doing much better internationally than is generally thought.

Four Solid Points

They make these points:
—If Laos and The Congo remain as dangerous as ever, at least the Communists haven't taken over.
—If Castro is still boss of Cuba, a more active interest in South America has helped to stem the spread of Castroism there.
—If Berlin remains unsolved, intricate proings for solutions continue.
—If the international situation remains critical, the U.S. military has been strengthened—two-thirds of all money added to the budget has been in this area—and a start has been made on civil defence.

His Tone Changed

able light, all this isn't seizing the initiative. And nearly all these explanations could have been made a year ago as well as now.
But no one can doubt the enormity or the complexity of the problems created by an implacable foe and by allies of widely-differing aims and hopes.

In a recent speech, Kennedy tried to explain some of his difficulties in foreign affairs. "We must face problems," he said, "which do not lend themselves to easy, quick or permanent solutions."

"And we must face the fact that the United States is neither omnipotent nor omniscient, that we cannot always impose our will on the other 94 per cent of mankind, that we cannot right every wrong or reverse each adversity, and that therefore there cannot be an American solution for every world problem."

This is a far different tone than he used while campaigning.

Birdnappers Hunted

LONDON (AP)—British police are hunting for bird-burglars. In the latest of a series of raids, a gang escaped with keets and bronze pigeons valued at £3,000 from the aviary of Dr. Kenneth Rothwell of Leicester. The birds were taken in the dead of night and Rothwell didn't hear a squawk.

Not Taken Lightly

Not that Kennedy, even when the campaign was hottest, ever took these problems lightly. But—example—after that he believed that, with proper diligence, answers favorable to the United States could be found.

For a man who had hoped to control the tides of history, the Cuban fiasco must have been as bitter a blow as any president ever received in what, theoretically, was a time of peace.
It shocked and dismayed his friends.

Enemies Helped

It loaded his enemies with ready-made ammunition, although few rushed out to shoot during such a critical time for the country. One prominent Republican, who never had liked the Kennedy picture of infallibility, commented recently that U.S. intervention in Cuba was immoral; blamed Kennedy for being mixed up in it.

Those who wanted action blamed him for not following up with the strength that would have made the invasion successful.

Communists — and many who weren't Communists at all — claimed this as fresh evidence that Uncle Sam is an imperialist meddler, never to be trusted.

Never Again

Out of this, one haunting question continues to arise: Hit with such a disaster so early in his term, has Kennedy been more timid, afraid of even mild risks, than he might otherwise have been?

27 ON TRIAL

Talks Precede Douk Bombings

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Meetings that preceded terrorism in British Columbia's West Kootenay were described in court Thursday as leaders of the Radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect appeared for preliminary hearing on arson conspiracy charges.

Six Freedomites, three of them members of the fraternal council, appeared in court shortly after 20 other members of the sect were committed for trial on similar charges. One other man was freed.

Some testimony was given under protection of the Canada Evidence Act by men who had been committed earlier.

The 27 men were among nearly 50 members of the sect arrested in an RCMP crackdown. All are charged with conspiring to set fires at the Orthodox Doukhobor communities of Otchenia and Pass Creek between Jan. 1 and July 31.

A July 30 fire destroyed communal buildings at Otchenia. Sixty persons were left homeless. There was no fire in Pass Creek but bombs were found in the communal buildings.

Accused in Thursday's hearing, which is continuing, were Bill Stupnikoff, William Konkin and Pete Markin, members of the 52-member fraternal council, Sid Salikin, Alex Babakoff and Pet Oestikoff. Markin was freed.

The six, as in the case of the previous 21, refused to plead and refused to state whether they wanted trial by judge or jury. All elected trial in the "court of God." They have no counsel.

Pete and Nick Repin, Alex Barisoff, John Marozoff, John Legebokoff, Louis Zaytsoff and Pete Tarasoff, committed earlier, and Fred Davidoff testified under the Canada Evidence Act, which guarantees their testimony will not be used against them.

They said the accused took part in meetings to discuss when the communities were to be attacked, who would burn them, the placing of bombs, supplying of explosive material and the transportation of raiders.

Barisoff said "everybody got acquainted on how to use" a bomb now being used in terrorist activities. It is composed of bottles of inflammable liquid, flannel wicks, a wooden block with a hollow space for a small wire element, matches, six-volt batteries, a time clock and wires.

When the clock reaches a certain time, voltage from the battery heats an element which fires matches which light the wick.

Bridge Safe After Two Bomb Blasts

GRAND FORKS, B.C. (CP)—Two bomb blasts did little damage to a steel and cement highway bridge on the eastern outskirts of this Boundary city early Thursday.

RCMP said that they suspected more than one person was involved in dynamiting the 150-foot long bridge over the Granby River. Tracks leading from under the bridge, constructed only a few years ago, to the highway were partly obliterated by fresh falling snow. RCMP said they believe the terrorists climbed into a waiting vehicle and headed east.

You Might Say He Began With a Rush (Gold)

BY MONTE ROBERTS

As the result of the discovery of gold in the Klondike, Richard Biggerstaff Wilson will take over as mayor of Victoria Jan. 1, 1962.

One hundred years earlier, in 1862, news of the rich Klondike strike which attracted hordes of amateur and professional prospectors reached London, where a north country boy named William Wilson labored as a bookkeeper accountant.

Wilson sniffed profit in the breeze—not directly from the goldfields, but indirectly as supplier.

He scraped together

enough to buy a consignment of dry goods and with it sailed to Victoria, a stopping point for Klondikers, in the vessel Selestria.

Clothing Store

Shortly after, he was joined by his brother Joseph, and thus began the W. & J. Wilson clothing store and the Wilson family which produced the winner in Thursday's election.

William Wilson was the grandfather of Mayor-Elect Wilson who today recalled a story of the firm in those hectic, free-wheeling days 100 years ago.

"William was the merchant, Joseph the public relations man," he said with a grin somewhat wider than his usual small smile. "William would sell a suit, Joseph would take the customer to the Brown Jug and buy him a drink."

The new mayor's middle name, Biggerstaff, is that of his father, second son of William Wilson, and the surname of one of William's closest friends in London.

Dick Wilson has one brother, William, in the frozen food business, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas Lampman.

Deep Pride

It was obvious to a visitor today that Dick Wilson takes a deep pride in being a member of one of Victoria's oldest families, and in the fact he will assume the duties of mayor in the city's centennial year—which is also 100 years after the first Wilson arrived in Victoria.

A lean-flanked, slim, athletic-looking man of 57 (he distributes 178 pounds on a five-foot 11-inch frame), his main sport today is golf, which he plays frequently and scores in the low 80s. He also enjoys trips into the outdoors for hunting and fishing.

RIDES HERD

Everything's Just Ducky For Goose

By IAIN HUNTER

Early-morning strollers on the Oak Bay golf course will be under close surveillance during the winter and are liable to be severely disciplined if they disturb the widgeon that have taken over in the vicinity of the third tee.

For the widgeon have a self-appointed guardian in the form of a lone White-fronted Goose.

The yellow-footed bird with the white patch around the base of its bill, which makes him look as if he had been dipping it into a bowl of icing sugar, looks rather out of place among the smaller ducks. But with outstretched neck and baleful eye he is prepared to defend his adopted flock against all comers.

RIDES HERD

The goose rides herd on the widgeon both at night when they come onto the course, and during the day when they disperse as far afield as Trial Island.

During the evening and morning flights it takes up its position of honor at "point." Local ornithologists and wild goose chasers agree that the mutual adoption of lone goose and widgeon is "unusual though not rare."

Last year apparently there were two adopted geese in the same area—a white-fronted and a snow goose. Whether the snow goose has found its way back to its own flock or onto someone's Christmas menu it is hard to say.

It is also impossible to tell whether this year's visitor is the same one that has taken up with the widgeon in years past.

TOO TIRED?

The white-fronted goose summers in the Arctic and migrates down the west coast to winter in Mexico or the Gulf states. Perhaps our friend was too tired to make the whole trip, perhaps he got lost, or perhaps in the crowded autumn airways he found himself in a strange formation with a different destination.

At any rate, "Anser albifrons," to give him his Latin name, like other geese, seems to have had little difficulty in gaining acceptance in a strange fraternity.

It is easy to imagine Anser waddling into the midst of a startled group of widgeon with no other credentials than his name and his big feet, and saying, "Come on fellows, let's alibrons."

While studying for his Bachelor of Commerce at McGill University (his prep school was University School), he played football and made the senior squad. Although this was in the days before the forward pass, Dick Wilson is no reactionary.

"Today's rules are much better," he says. "And another thing—the game is away above the U.S. version, mainly due to the rouge."

When he returned from McGill in 1924, he went to work in the clothing store, but on the death of his father in 1928 used some of the estate to get into the automobile business.

Then the Crash

He established Motor House, at Yates and Vancouver, in a building now occupied by Speedway Motors.

Almost immediately, the 1929 crash and the consequent depression started sending business to the wall. Motor House tottered, but it didn't fall. There were many months when Wilson was lucky to get $100 out of the business.

In 1930, he acquired the Chevrolet franchise, but things were so bad by 1932 only 62 cars and trucks were sold—with sedans going for $888.

"In 1931," he recalled, "there were so many unsold 1930 Chevys that a dealer had to take two '30s for every '31 model."

In 1933, the young company showed its first profit, and with improving times, moved steadily forward.

Motor House expanded, moved down the street, and became Wilson Motors, in 1935. In 1957, Wilson sold the company, retaining ownership of the building and property, and "retired"—being immediately commandeered as Community Chest chairman.

Oak Bay Council

He held this post for two years and has served as Oak Bay councillor for two terms from 1949 to 1952. He is currently chairman of Victoria College's University Development Board, a vice-president of the Royal Jubilee Hospital Board, a director of Queen Alexandra Solarium, Victoria Automobile Club, Norfolk House School, and chairman of the Victoria Advisory Board to Canada Trust Company.

He is the sixth Victoria native son to serve as mayor.

The others were A. E. Todd, R. J. Porter, Reginald Hayward, J. Carl Pendray and Claude Harrison.

MONTE ROBERTS

Thursday, Dec. 14, 1961—namely, yesterday—will go down in history as a day of crisis.

I do not refer to the critical decisions made by the voters of the City of Victoria as they meandered to the polls to choose a mayor and a passel of aldermen.

I refer to the critical situation in Oak Bay—a situation which may lead to repercussions heard in the highest courts of the land.

What happened in Oak Bay yesterday was unheard-of. Simply.

THE OAK BAY LIQUOR STORE WAS CLOSED DUE TO THE ELECTIONS IN VICTORIA!

Really, now, I say, what?

Just because the citizens of Victoria were exercising their franchise (not too vigorously, of course) THE OAK BAY LIQUOR STORE WAS CLOSED.

As a resident of Oak Bay (I am not a citizen as yet, but my border crossing card is in good standing), it appalled me to see strong men go white to the lips as they approached the liquor store and read the sign—starch, austere, unyielding: "Store closed all day due to elections."

After all, was this not Oak Bay's Very Own Liquor store?

Had its establishment not eliminated that dread trip into downtown Victoria, that safari only to be undertaken through direct need?

Were there not enthusiastic cries of delight (such as here, here, and well done) when Oak Bay finally was presented with its own liquor store, not too many months ago?

And now, this.

A sign saying "Closed all day due to elections."

What elections, wondered the citizens (and residents) of Oak Bay.

WE had our elections a week ago, the citizens (and residents) said.

When WE had our elections, they said, OUR liquor store was open, and it failed to result in over-indulgence, heated arguments, or rioting in the streets.

At one stage, there was talk of forming a citizens' committee, and marching on the Legislative Buildings.

However, cooler heads prevailed. One reason being it is a frightfully long march from Oak Bay to the Legislative Buildings.

And the other reason being (I hate to commit this fact to cold print) THE OAK BAY LIQUOR STORE IS ACTUALLY IN VICTORIA.

Really.

The way matters are at present, Oak Bay residents may purchase spirituous encouragement at THEIR store on THEIR election day.

But not on Victoria's election day. That's when they must drive to Esquimalt for reinforcements.

And an Oak Bay resident really doesn't feel quite comfortable in Esquimalt.

After all, Now you know why Thursday, Dec. 14, was a day of crisis in Oak Bay.

I can assure you, the issue is not yet settled. Oak Bay is going to get its very own liquor store within its very own boundaries, or there will be an Alaska Panhandle dispute which will make 54-40 or fight look like cream puffs at 20 paces.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

"A" group of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey Restaurant parking lot for a soil survey at Francis Park.

Two men reported items stolen from their cars Thursday.

W. Drew, 10171 West Road, Sidney, said his car was parked at the Tally Ho Hotel parking area during the morning, and when he returned to it a camera, some film, a burberry coat, a generator, and some Christmas gifts had been removed.

A tool box valued at between $200-$300 was stolen from the trunk of a car owned by Donald Strong, 1925 Kings Road.

Mr. Strong told police his car was parked in the Tally Ho Hotel parking lot for a time and later in the New Court House parking lot.

He said the theft might have occurred at either place.

Karina Marie Willard, the six-week-old Victoria baby given a one-in-five chance of surviving a rare operation Saturday, has been taken off the critical list at Vancouver General Hospital.

She is in satisfactory condition and improving, a hospital spokesman said Thursday.

The operation to correct malformed veins near the baby's heart was the first of its kind attempted in Vancouver.

A heart surgery team performed the operation on Karina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Millard, 1725 Bank Street.

Coroner J. H. Moore said today an inquest is not necessary in the death of an elderly woman early Thursday in her smoke-filled Ten Mile Point home.

Mrs. Norma I. Moreton, a 71-year-old widow who lived alone at 2920 Sea View Road, was overcome by smoke from a fire of unknown origin which burned curtains and blackened the walls of her bedroom.

"What Are Kindergartens For?" will be the topic of a discussion on Parents' Night at the Goosey Gander Kindergarten on Tuesday, at 8 p.m. Slides of children's activities taken throughout the fall term will be shown.

CPO Crone suggested a method of cleaning ships' bilges while at sea, which has been adopted for use by the RCN.

A meeting of the Intermediate Musical Arts Society will be held tonight at 7:15 in the Newstead Hall.

SNOW AGAIN

... MAYBE

The slight warming trend of the past few days will reverse itself tonight with a return to freezing temperatures and the possibility of bit of snow, weatherman William Mackie said today.

WHAT HAVE I DONE?

Bound for "jail" and mighty unhappy about it is this sad-eyed hound picked up by the SPCA today on charges of wandering at large without licence tag. Dog wants back with his owners, hopes his owners want him back and will bail him out from SPCA small animal shelter.

Indians Plan 1962 Start On New Hall

Songhees Indians next year hope to start constructing a community hall which would be used to stage ceremonial dances for tourists and the general public.

Mrs. Sam Joseph, who teaches native dances, told a meeting of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society Thursday a building fund soon may be big enough to launch the project.

The Songhees band headed by Chief John Albany has been raising money for the past two years for the building. Some returns from the annual Vancouver Island Festival held in spring go towards the fund.

Mrs. Joseph said the hall also would be used for teaching young people hobbies and crafts.

Dr. A. N. Beattie, president of the society, replied that members are prepared to assist the band.

The meeting was held at the Victoria Public Library and was attended by several Indian chiefs from South Vancouver Island.

ENTRY DEADLINE EXTENDED ON HOME LIGHTING CONTEST

Entry deadline for the Junior Chamber of Commerce Christmas home lighting contest has been extended to Tuesday evening.

Lighting committee chairman Maynard Savery said today the chamber hoped to increase the number of entries by this means.

"We have about 40 in now," he said, "but we would like to have a great deal more."

In view of possible delayed entries in the mail a box will be placed outside the Jaycee office, 1217 Douglas, and entries can be dropped there after the weekend.

Judging will take place Thursday night.

PAINT FIRM VETERAN

Funeral Saturday For Businessman

William Henry Lawson, 73, for many years general sales manager for the British America Paint Co. Ltd. here and one of the best known executives in the industry, died Thursday at his home, 1302 Rockland Avenue.

He was born and educated in Victoria, and at the age of 15 joined the Pendray Soap and Paint Works on Humboldt Street, on the site of the Empress Hotel, as office boy.

Surviving are the widow, Mabel, at home; one son, Melvin S. (Red); a daughter, Mrs. Verlyn W. Watson, four grandchildren, and a brother, Stanley E. Lawson, all in Victoria. Funeral services will be held at Hayward's Saturday at 3:15 p.m., with Rev. J. L. W. McLean, DD, officiating, and will be followed by cremation.

Clean-Up Drive Launched By Ex-Premier's Grandson

A new political reform group was officially launched in Victoria today by Robin Dunsmuir, a grandson of one of B.C.'s early premiers and lieutenant-governors.

"All I'm opposing is bad government," said Mr. Dunsmuir, 49, who pledged his full time to "cleaning up" what he called the present "dictatorial" regime in power in B.C.

Mr. Dunsmuir said his new group, called the Political Reform Association of B.C., is not founded on political or financial ambition.

EDUCATE PUBLIC

He said its role must be to educate the public to politics.

He said he did not intend to contest provincial elections, but would be prepared to support old-line parties if they followed his principles.

"If people would like it, and we're strong enough, we could fill the breach as an emergency measure," he said.

Mr. Dunsmuir, grandson of Hon. James Dunsmuir, premier from 1900-1902, and lieutenant-governor, 1906-1909, issued a basic 10-point platform, but said he wanted his group's policy to be formed by members.

FREE MEMBERSHIP

"Membership in this association will be free to all British Columbians who have the best interests of their province at heart. If sufficient numerical support is forthcoming a meeting will be called to organize the association and an appeal for funds will be made to carry on its work."

Mr. Dunsmuir said he had voted Social Credit in the last election, but had grown more and more dissatisfied and "angry" at its actions.

"The real thing that got me was the confiscation of the B.C. Electric without the right of appeal," he said.

GOOD WISHES

He said he had talked to a lot of people in Victoria and Vancouver who expressed interest in his group and hoped it would "roll."

"In a supposedly free and democratic society the premier, with the co-operation of a weak and servile government, has assumed dictatorial powers contrary to all the established principles of democracy," said Mr. Dunsmuir.

"The rule of law is being abandoned; the rights of the individual and of minority groups are ignored; the will of the people through their elected representatives no longer controls 'parliament'."

Among his 10 declared goals:

To institute "proper democratic government" in B.C.; to raise the standard of parliamentary debate and procedure; to eliminate "patronage, graft and corruption in government"; to keep the people fully and truthfully informed; to co-operate with the federal government.

Bail Raised To $4,000 For Realtor

Bail was raised to $4,000 today in city police court in the wake of nine charges against former city realtor Milton Harter King of theft by conversion.

The nine charges involve a total of more than $31,000, and will be read in full detail Jan. 5 when King makes his plea.

Following are the amounts charged against King: Patterson-Hunt Building Ltd., $1,700; Vancity Realty Ltd., $10,000;

Glady's Milligan, $2,600; Thomas and Rebecca Bennett, $400; James and Ann Colvin, $1,200; Estate of E. J. Savannah, $3,200; Estate of E. J. Savannah, $2,000; James Morrison, $8,000, and J. Stewart Smith, $2,867.

MISUNDERSTANDING

Only the first of the nine was read in court, but city prosecutor Angus Smith had bail raised from $2,500 in lieu of a former misunderstanding with Magistrate William Ostler.

The magistrate had previously set total bail at $2,500 but Mr. Smith explained he had desired an "extra $2,500."

Defence lawyer David Hummel agreed this was correct and said the additional sureties, to $4,000, would be raised. Jack Barracough, 2830 Lansdowne, put up sureties on the first seven counts.

Mr. Hummel also elected trial by magistrate for his client. He specifically asked to reserve plea until then because "there is just the slightest chance that I might ask for a preliminary hearing at that time."

ASK The TIMES

Q. Will you please tell me what was the amount of the last donation to Victoria Symphony by the municipality of Oak Bay, and, taking into consideration the number of taxpayers in the municipality, what would this amount to in dollars per taxpayer?—J.M.

A. It is a case of cents per taxpayer: nearly 32c. The municipality donated $250, and there are 7,992 owner-electors in Oak Bay.

Q. Would you please tell me how much it cost to build the Grand Coulee dam?—D.C.

A. Total cost of the dam and power plant was $174 millions. It is estimated that the project will have cost over three times this amount when land reclamation and other connected projects are completed.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Nuts to Last Year's Nuts,
Be Sure They're Fresh...

By PENNY SAVER

I'll venture a guess that during the holiday season the nut bowl is one of the leading attractions in any house.

Must admit though, that there is nothing more disappointing than to painstakingly crack a nut open, only to find that it is bad inside. Reason could be that it's last year's nuts that have been purchased. If so, then a good percentage of them are bound to be in poor condition.

One store I know guarantees that their nuts are really fresh and this year's pack. They're selling at a reasonable price too. Packaged in one-pound bags, mixed nuts are only 49 cents a pound. Filberts, almonds or Brazil nuts are 55 cents a pound and pecans, 73 cents. Of course, there's that good ole stand-by, peanuts, too, seven-and-one-half-ounce bags, 19 cents.

Something to go along with nuts is one of the attractive nut bowls I've seen. Bowls are cross cuts of tree trunks, well finished inside and with the bark on the outside. In the centre there is a small wooden stand that holds a nut cracker and two picks. These are $2.98.

Ever used persimmons to add color and dash to your salads? An imported fruit, they are only available for a short time during November and December, and once you've acquired a taste for them they'll be in great demand in your household.

To use in a salad, you quarter them as you would a tomato, garnish salad and add french dressing. I was warned that they should only be used when perfectly ripe (soft), or they would be nippy. When ripe they have a full sweet flavor. These sell two for 39 cents.

Give me a call and I'll share my secrets with you.

DEAR ABBY...

Go, Go, Go!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: For 18 years my husband, our children and I have gone to his parents for Christmas dinner. He comes from a large clannish family, and all his sisters and brothers and their children attend this dinner. The whole gang totals 44, so you can picture the commotion. This year I want to have my own Christmas dinner, with just my husband, our three children and myself. When I suggested it, my husband blew his top. He said his parents were getting on in years, and after they had gone we can have our own Christmas dinner, but while they are living we should go to their home. Abby, I do not care to wait until his parents die to enjoy a quiet Christmas dinner at home. What is your suggestion?

HATES MOB SCENES. DEAR HATES: Button your lip, put cotton in your ears and go! If you yearn for a quiet Christmas dinner at home, make your own on Christmas Eve.

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old and need your help desperately. I like this one boy very much but I don't think he likes me. I call him up, write to him and have all my friends ask him what he thinks of me but it isn't doing much good. I am fairly cute. Could you please give me some advice on how to get this certain boy without being a pest? Thanks loads.

LOSING OUT. DEAR LOSING: No wonder you are "losing out." No boy wants to be stalked like an animal. Leave him completely alone. And in the future, if you want a boy to become interested in you, let HIM do the chasing.

White Chrysanthemums, Roses in Church

Standard baskets of white chrysanthemums decorated St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for the wedding of Linda Lee White and Robert Aleck Muse. Guest pews were marked with white roses and lily of the valley. Dr. J. L. W. McLean officiated.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. White, 2663 Orchard Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Aleck M. Muse, 1217 Carlisle Street. Mr. White gave his daughter in marriage.

The bridal gown was of white brocade, styled with a full skirt featuring a slight bustle effect and fitted bodice cut with a rounded neckline and lily point sleeves. A coronet of seed pearls and brilliants held the waist-length veil that had scalloped edging its six tiers. Coral rosebuds and carnations were in the bouquet. Only jewelry was pearl earrings, gift of the groom.

CORAL SATIN

Full-skirted gowns of coral satin were chosen by matron of honor, Mrs. Frank Hughes; bridesmaid, Miss Sandra White, the bride's sister; bridesmatron, Mrs. Aleck Hancock, and junior bridesmaid, Miss Joyce White, another sister of the bride. They wore toning flower and net headpieces. Senior attendants carried crescent bouquets of small white chrysanthemums and coral carnations, while junior bridesmaid had a colonial bouquet of the same flowers.

Christmas Tea

A most successful Christmas Tea was held at Liberal Headquarters by the Liberal Women's Forum. Tea table was covered with a holly decorated cloth, and centred with a green glass bowl of holly, with red candles. Guests were received by the general convener, Mrs. E. McKenzie.

Members of the clinic auxiliary make them into Christmas cards and calendars, and they are sold at bazaars and at other money making events planned by this group.

This artist doesn't work in a studio with a strong north light. He works at a small table beside a window in the living room at the Richmond Road home of his daughter, Mrs. V. M. Knox, where he has lived since his wife died six years ago.

He works a little each day. His thin blue-veined hands use his brushes and his colors with a delicate touch born of his many years. When he puts paint to paper, however, his strokes are sure and clear cut.

Mrs. H. B. McClung, director of the Cerebral Palsy Clinic tells you: "The paintings are done in soft, restful colorings and they are perfectly lovely. We never have any trouble selling them."

BETWEEN OURSELVES

Hobby Spans Nine Decades; Now It Works for Others

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Age sits lightly on the 93-year-old shoulders of Major William A. C. Taylor.

One reason for this is that ever since he retired he's been developing an interesting hobby that reaches back to the time when he was a lad of 11. Not only developing it but he has been making it work for others.

The hobby is painting. It was an outlet for his creative genius in his youth, through his active years at university and his mature years in India with the British Army.

Now it is a consuming work that keeps him happy and busy and young in spirit.

Throughout the year he creates attractive water color pictures, from paintings done in his earlier years, from scenes he finds in books and from memory of places he has been during his lifetime.

These pictures are given to the Cerebral Palsy Clinic. Members of the clinic auxiliary make them into Christmas cards and calendars, and they are sold at bazaars and at other money making events planned by this group.

This artist doesn't work in a studio with a strong north light. He works at a small table beside a window in the living room at the Richmond Road home of his daughter, Mrs. V. M. Knox, where he has lived since his wife died six years ago.

He works a little each day. His thin blue-veined hands use his brushes and his colors with a delicate touch born of his many years. When he puts paint to paper, however, his strokes are sure and clear cut.

Mrs. H. B. McClung, director of the Cerebral Palsy Clinic tells you: "The paintings are done in soft, restful colorings and they are perfectly lovely. We never have any trouble selling them."

Major Taylor is described by friends as an artist, actor and gentleman.

He was born in Bangalore, India (his father fought with the artillery in the Indian Mutiny). He fought with Lord Roberts' First Punjab Cavalry in the storied days of the Indian frontiers, went to Oxford and Sandhurst and returned to India with the East Surrey Regiment.

He lived in India until 1908, when he came to Canada with his wife.

THEATRICALS, TOO

Both the Taylors were very prominent in Victoria theatricals back down the years. Major Taylor was stage director for the first three productions of the present Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Society—the first being "Pinafore" in 1946.

But that is all behind him now and his creative ability is being concentrated on his painting.

Festive occasions call for fancy frippery. For Christmas parties you can try that glamorous hairdo, experiment with glitter on your eyelids or wear those mad earrings you have been saving. Hair spray in gold or silver can be used for tipping or perhaps even for your whole coiffure.

In his sunset years Major Taylor has succeeded in beating time by forgetting it and remembering only that there is work to do for others.

It's a lesson many of us could learn. A lesson many of us should strive to remember.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Try These Exercises For Troublesome Tummy

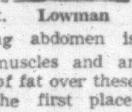

Q. "I am 69 years old, almost 5 feet, 7 inches tall and weigh 135 pounds. My bust measures 36 inches, waist 30 inches and hips 37 inches. But I have a big protruding stomach. Is there any exercise which will reduce it?"

A. Yes, there are many abdominal exercises which will decrease this measurement. The protruding abdomen is due to lax muscles and an accumulation of fat over these muscles. In the first place, exercise will strengthen the abdominal muscles. Also, fat is not so likely to accumulate or remain over busy muscles. Special exercise redistributes weight more attractively.

Your waist measurement is out of proportion. This is influenced by the lax abdominal muscles. Watch your posture. Try to hold your abdomen in. You should have your heart and blood pressure checked before beginning any exercises.

Here is one. Lie on the floor on your back with your arms resting on the floor overhead. Raise your right leg with a stiff knee. Lower leg to the floor. Raise your left leg and lower to the floor. Continue, alternating right and left. Each time your leg returns to the floor, stretch out, making yourself as long as possible from your fingertips to your toes.

When your muscles are strong enough do the following: Raise the right leg with a stiff knee. As you lower your right leg, raise your left. As you lower your left leg, raise your right. In other words, one leg moves upwards as the other moves downward. Once you begin this do

Lowman

A. Look, sweetie, you are too young to worry about your later years. Anyway, the little capillaries in your legs have nothing to do with varicose veins in later life, and I bet they are not nearly so noticeable to others as they are to you. These show more in some women because they have thinner skin or less fat beneath the skin. Avoid clothing which is too tight, especially round garters, and use make-up to cover the capillaries if they really trouble you. Most important, don't let them affect your happiness and fun.

If any of my readers would like to have my tested abdominal-slimming exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 2. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Trussing the Christmas turkey takes patience and skill. Nylon dental floss is an excellent material to use for this purpose. The floss is fine enough to thread through a needle, slides easily through the skin and yet is strong enough to hold firmly. It will not crumble or break when the bird is ready for the table.

TODAY'S RECIPE

HARD SAUCE FOR PUDDINGS

Six tablespoons margarine, 1 lb. (4 1/2 cups sifted) confectioners' sugar, 1 egg, dash salt, 1/4-cup rum or 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Cream margarine. Gradually add 1 1/2 cups sugar, beating until blended. Add egg; beat well. Gradually add remaining sugar and the salt; beat until mixture is light and fluffy. Fold in rum or lemon juice and grated rind. Chill for use in pastry bag. Makes about 2 cups.

LEMON SAUCE

One-half cup sugar, 1 1/2-tablespoons corn starch, 1/4-teaspoon salt, 1 1/4-cups boiling water, 2 tablespoons margarine, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel. Mix sugar, corn starch and salt in small saucepan. Gradually blend in water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until sauce thickens and comes to a boil. Boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Add margarine, lemon juice and lemon peel. Serve hot on plum pudding pie. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

3. Although standard grades of beef are just as good, public demand for choice and good grade beef has created a shortage which, in turn, has forced prices higher.

4. The beef market in North America is relatively free from artificial interference.

ACCUSED LOVES HIS SON

'Victim' Doubts Murder Attempt

NANAIMO—Ramon Ordano, 26, charged with the attempted murder of his ex-wife, heard the "victim" cast doubts on the charge at a preliminary hearing in police court here Thursday.

It arose out of a fire Oct. 4 at the Cedar district home of Mrs. Nan Ordano and her two children.

She said at the hearing that Ordano's love for his six-year-old son would have stopped him from setting fire to a house she was in while he knew the boy also was in the house.

BURNING BAGS

The charge was laid after Mrs. Ordano told police she had found burning paper bags in her home shortly after he had visited the home Oct. 4.

Mrs. Ordano appeared in court as a Crown witness. Under cross-examination she said that on the day of the fire she had been in two beer parlors during the afternoon, and was intoxicated.

ANOTHER MAN

She was in the bedroom of the home with another man when Ordano came into the room, she said. The two children were playing nearby. She said that 10

IF DAM BUILT

Peace Pike Threat To Fraser

VANCOUVER (CP)—An official of the University of British Columbia Institute of Fisheries says damming the Peace River may affect salmon and sport fishing in the Fraser River system through introduction of predatory pike.

Dr. C. C. Lindsey said the Peace is infested with northern pike and jackfish, of little commercial food value, which prey on smaller fish and carry tapeworm parasites.

Dr. Lindsey said the provincial government should make an immediate grant for study of the effect of the Peace River power project on the distribution of fish.

Scientists, he said, would then be prepared to forestall any injurious effects.

COULDN'T GET UP

The pike are restricted to the reaches of the Peace below the big canyon where the power dam is projected, he said. They were unable to fight their way up the current.

Construction of a dam would provide an artificial lake in which pike would thrive and be able to reach the headwaters of the Parsnip River at Summit Lake.

The lake is separated from the Fraser River system by low, swampy ground. With very little rise in the water level, pike would be able to infiltrate the Fraser.

They could quickly ruin sport fishing in many B.C. lakes and streams and convey the tapeworm parasite to salmon.

THREE FEET LONG

Whitefish, Dr. Lindsey said, have already been affected in this manner. Pike had also infected Alaska salmon.

Dr. Lindsey said northern pike thrive in the Mackenzie and Yukon River systems, reaching more than three feet in length.

One way to keep them out of the Fraser would be to poison the pike in the Peace for a few miles downstream during construction of the dam at the big canyon.

Students Play To Buy Milk For Red Cross

LANGFORD—Belmont High School band has switched beneficiaries of a band concert at Colwood Plaza tonight from 7.30 to 8, and a Saturday porchlight campaign from 6 to 8 p.m.

Drive was scheduled originally to raise $90 for replacement of a clarinet stolen from the school with other instruments Dec. 1.

When they heard from RCMP that the clarinet had been located this week, they decided to go ahead with the program and give all money collected to the Red Cross Milk for Greek Children Fund.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 19-year-old Victoria man Thursday was given six months for possession of a saxophone he said he didn't know how to play.

The saxophone and other musical instruments were stolen from the board room of Belmont High School.

Trevor Caley was arrested when he visited a Vancouver hotel room where police found the instrument in a closet.

He said he had never seen the saxophone before in his life and didn't even know how to play it.

minutes after Ordano left she saw burning paper bags and called police. The hearing continued today. Ordano, 26, is a Chemainus millworker.

4,000 See Museum

CAMPBELL RIVER — More than 4,000 people visited the district museum during July and August, curator Ed Meade told the village commission here.

Salary for the attendant during that time was $232.55, he said, but this expense was offset by donations from visitors of $142.50.

RENEWED HOPE GIVEN CENTRE BOOSTERS

NANAIMO — Backers of a scheme to build a $300,000 civic centre at Exhibition Park took heart Wednesday with the outline of a plan by Dr. J. E. Horsland, Vancouver Island Exhibition Association president.

In an address to Hub City Kiwanis Club, he said his group could obtain $3 in government grants for every dollar it spent in the park.

A civic centre scheme was shelved six months ago, but talk of a centre was revived when the Civic Properties' Commission discussed spending $30,000 on the existing Centennial Building, which would still leave it with shortcomings.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Maurice Chevalier, at 73, and in what he calls "my autumn years"—is going to retire—but only from the stage.

"I can improve a lot on TV and the screen and maybe on records, but I've done as good as I can on the stage," he told me. "I've done 62 years on the stage—so I'm no quitter."

Chevalier revealed his policy of "being different" in an effort "to be better" at an El Morocco party heralding the Feb. 11 NBC TV show, "The Broadway of Lerner and Loewe," in which he'll star.

A couple of big movies each year, a few big TV shows, will satisfy him, and he'll refuse offers from all over the world to do his one-man stage show (he did the last one in San Francisco in 1960).

"I see," I said. "You're afraid of..." (I was probably going to say something about age.)

Chevalier, the gay boulevardier, drew himself up, tilted his chin and—figuratively if not actually—his straw hat, "I am afraid of nothing!" he announced proudly. "I'm trying to be intelligent. I'm always thinking of Gene Tunney, who was the world's champion and retired. I'm just trying to imitate Gene Tunney!"

Perle Mesta's plotting a big comeback as Washington's hostess with the mostest... Frank Sinatra, just turned 46, will be birthdaying in Hong Kong or thereabouts with Leo Durocher, the Mike Romanoff and Jilly. But his lieutenants'll be here setting up locations for "The Manchurian Candidate" to be filmed here in February... Rumorsville: that NBC's buying Steve Allen's contract back from ABC... Al Bloomingdale's paying Joey Dee's Twist orchestra $5,000 to do a New Year's Eve party at Romanoff's in Hollywood.

Bob Hope, kidding the LA Rams football team, said, "I can see the opposing team intercepting a pass—but not the one from our centre..." A Florida teen-age reader chides me for mentioning the new dance the "Gully Wully." Everybody in Daytona knows, she says, it's "the Hully Gully."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Hey, Hugh O'Brian! Actor

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and at the second question a Hammon's Atlas of Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to David Wachner, age 11, of Elm Grove, Wis., for his question:

Are there seasons at the equator?

Any point on the equator is exactly halfway between the earth's two poles, which means that it is narrow enough to jump across. However, it runs all the way around the wide waist of the world, making it almost 25,000 miles long. Nevertheless, a narrow region at the equator has a climate all its own, different from the climates a few miles to the north and south.

The equator runs across Ecuador, Columbia and Brazil. It then crosses the Atlantic to Africa, passes through the heart of the Congo, across Lake Victoria and Somaliland to the Indian Ocean. It passes through Borneo, Sumatra and a few other Indonesian islands, then crosses the Pacific back to where we started in South America. Only about 6,000 miles of this distance are over land and about 19,000 miles are over the ocean.

The climate at the equator is modified somewhat by land and ocean, islands and continents, highlands and lowlands. Some regions are wetter or

Day and Night Always Equal

The equator is a great circle, slicing the globe into the northern and southern hemispheres. It bisects, or cuts exactly in half, the circle of illumination which divides the globe into day and night. Half of the equator is always in sunlight and half in darkness, and since the earth turns around once every 24 hours, day and night at any point along the equator are always equal. This is one reason why the equator does not have changing seasons as we do. Our summers are hot because the days are longer, our winters are cold mainly because the nights are longer.

We think of the tropics as a hot region and that the equator, midway between the tropics, must be the hottest spot in the world. But this is not so. Many regions along the equator have daily temperatures between 70 and 80 degrees and temperatures of 90 degrees or more are very rare.

Andy sends a Hammon's Library World Atlas to Leigh Thomas, age 11, of Euclid, Ohio, for the question:

Does the far side of the moon ever get any sunshine?

The golden moon seems to change from a thin sliver to a big pumpkin and back again to a thin sliver. Actually, it did not change its shape at all. We see only that part of the moon which happens to be bathed in golden sunshine. The other part of the round ball is just too dark for us to see. One half of the moon is always bathed in sunshine and during a month we see the lunar day dawn and creep across the side of the moon which faces the world.

The earth turns on its axis, giving us a day and night every 24 hours. The moon takes about 27 earth days to turn on its axis and each lunar day lasts about two earth weeks. The same side faces us all the time, part of it in sunshine, part of it in the darkness of night. When most of our side of the moon is dark, most of the far side is lit with sunshine. For as the moon turns on its axis, it faces the sun with first one side, then the other.

LOST BOTH LEGS

Stricken Climber Staging Comeback

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Sub-Lieutenant Peter Mulgrew, who was carried helpless from near the top of one of the highest peaks in the Himalayas, is courageously fighting his way back to health. Although he has had both legs amputated, he is determined to return to normal life.

Mulgrew, 34, a naval radio expert, has had an adventurous career. In 1957, he was chosen for Sir Edmund Hillary's south polar expedition. He was one of the group that stormed its way to the pole in converted farm tractors.

He showed such qualities that Hillary made him one of his first choices for the expedition he led last year to the Himalayas. This in spite of the fact that Mulgrew had done little mountaineering. Once in the Himalayas, however, he showed himself as much at home in the mountains as he had been in the polar wastes. He was a member of the final assault team selected to attack 27,790-foot Mount Makalu without oxygen, but near the summit suffered a blood clot in the lung and collapsed.

The rescue of a climber from such an altitude had never been accomplished before. But after a heroic effort members of the expedition managed to bring him down the mountain, more dead than alive.

During the ordeal Mulgrew had become seriously frostbitten. He spent a long period in hospital in Nepal, where all his toes and the first joints of three fingers and a thumb were amputated.

Sir Edmund flew back with him to New Zealand, where months in naval hospital followed. Frostbite had struck so deeply that it eventually proved necessary to amputate both legs below the knee. In addition, he was operated on for a chest infection.

After months more in hospital, Mulgrew was fitted for artificial legs and has been allowed to go home. Now at Brown's Bay, a suburb of Auckland, he is learning to walk again.

ADMIRED BY NATION

His courage has brought wide admiration throughout New Zealand. Prime Minister Holyoake expressed the country's feeling when he visited him and presented him with a cherrywood walking stick as a mark of appreciation of his fight back to health.

Meanwhile, the navy has assured Mulgrew that it can still use his services. It says it is anxious not to lose his specialized knowledge in certain fields of electronics. Mulgrew is still convalescing but hopes to be back at work by Christmas.

A SHORT STORY

IT'S WIN-AND-GRIN FOR THE LUCKY FOUR

by 181 votes. At right, Ald. Millard Mooney, who increased his poll over 1959, mops the brow of Ald. J. L. W. McLean after close shave in hanging on to his seat when his poll tumbled by 925 votes. He had to come from behind to edge out William Hudson.

ALL ALDERMEN RE-ELECTED AS HUDSON JUST MISSES AGAIN

Wilson Hands Smith 5 to 1 Drubbing

By JOHN MIKA
Mayor-elect R. B. (Dick) Wilson smashed his way into City Hall Thursday with almost a five-to-one margin of support from voters.

An obviously satisfied electorate also returned incumbent aldermen Mrs. Lily Wilson, Geoffrey Edgell and Millard Mooney with increased majorities while Ald. J. L. W. McLean squeaked into the fourth spot after the only close race of the day.

Mr. Wilson captured 82 per cent of the 10,004 ballots cast to take the mayoralty on his first bid for city council.

"It's just amazing, there has never been anything like this in the city," said one of the poll officials.

CONCEDED EARLY

Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith made the hard journey from his campaign headquarters to the polling station to concede defeat after the first of seven tallies was issued showing he had only 47 votes to Mr. Wilson's 302.

By the time he arrived at the polling station the second tally had widened Mr. Wilson's lead to 819 against 154.

The outcome was obvious before actual counting began as polling officials unfolded ballots before they were parceled out to the counters.

"It's a landslide" was the message that quickly spread through the hall from spectators. Half an hour later the outcome was confirmed by one of the earliest concessions in memory.

AVERAGE TURNOUT

Turnout was 49.1 per cent—about average for a mayoralty race.

Last mayoralty race—aided by a referendum on fluoridation—attracted 1,348 more voters for a near-record 55.78 per cent turnout.

In that election, Mayor Percy Scurrell polled 6,261, Mr. Smith 3,238 and Robert McMillan 1,621.

Civic observers expect Mr. Smith's crushing 8,196-1,720 defeat this time to prevent him from contesting the post again.

"I am grateful to the citizens of Victoria for their support of the principles I put forward in the campaign," said Mr. Wilson. "I only hope I will be able to live up to the vote of confidence given me."

Two Police Charged

MONTREAL (CP)—Free-lance photographer Walter Steele laid charges Thursday against two Quebec provincial policemen who tried unsuccessfully to have him convicted of assault and reckless driving.

The 28-year-old photographer charged Const. Andre Charest with assaulting his wife Evelyn, and causing damage to his property. Const. Gilbert Lacroix was charged with only property damage.

Judge Wilfrid Denis signed the summonses ordering the policemen to appear at an undetermined date.

RCAF Operations Headed by Ball

OTTAWA (CP)—Air Commodore Frank W. Ball, 45, of Brandon, Man., Thursday, was named chief of operational requirements at RCAF headquarters in Ottawa.

He now is assistant chief of staff, plans and policy, at the Allied air forces central Europe headquarters in Fontainebleau, France. He moves to his new post late this month.

"It was a good campaign and I appreciate the clean fight my opponent waged."

Mr. Smith suffered his third defeat in a mayoralty race and followed by a week his Spored colleague John Tisdalle, Saanich M.L.A., who was badly beaten in an effort to win the Saanich reeveship.

Both were overwhelmed by public rejection of attempts to hold office in civic and provincial governments at the same time, some observers felt.

This view was shared by Mr. Smith.

"It's a fact in this area that the people do not want M.L.A.s on council, and the Victoria voters have indicated they do not want one as mayor," he said, after conceding.

"It's obvious that Mr. Wilson has won a clear-cut victory and I offer him my sincere congratulations," he said after less than 10 per cent of the poll had been counted.

MAYOR JUBILANT

Mayor Scurrell, who retires at the end of this month and has fought against Mr. Smith in two mayoralty campaigns, was jubilant with the result.

"I never had any doubt about the result," he said. "To say I'm delighted is the understatement of the year."

"We are assured an able and efficient administration for the next two years and those years are going to be a real challenge to the new mayor and council.

"I'm pleased the electors have re-elected the council members because they all are sincere persons."

1,500 PHONED

Mr. Wilson's campaign manager, A. E. Osborough, revealed that more than 1,500 persons phoned his helpers for transportation to the polls.

"We knew by 2 p.m. that we were sure to win the election but we never expected such a big landslide," he said.

Five of the six "outside" aldermanic candidates were beaten soundly but William Hudson almost made it again.

Last year Mr. Hudson was declared elected by a margin of five votes but subsequent recounts and finally a judicial recount took the victory away from him.

SLIPPED BACK

After leading Ald. J. L. W. McLean for the fourth seat in the early part of the count this time, he slipped behind by a few votes at the end. But an automatic second count to check tallies finally placed him 94 behind—knocking out hope of a recount for him because the regulations require a gap smaller than 50 votes to permit it.

Ald. Lily Wilson, who followed Ald. Geoffrey Edgell last time, switched places with him by leading the aldermanic poll.

Both of them and Ald. Mooney substantially increased their polls this time although fewer people voted than in 1959. However, Ald. McLean dropped more than 20 per cent of his support.

Votes received by the four, with their 1959 showings in brackets, were:

Ald. Wilson 6,141 (5,367); Ald. Edgell 5,960 (5,684); Ald. Mooney 5,073 (4,858); Ald. McLean 3,783 (4,708).

5 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE AS PARENTS AWAY

WATERFORD, Ont. (UPI)—Five children died today when fire swept their home while their parents were away visiting relatives.

The dead, ranging in age from 18 months to 11 years, were children of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hoffman.

Two other children escaped the 15-minute blaze which was believed to have been caused by an overheated stove.

The victims were identified by police as Janet, 11; Robert, 10; Archie, 7; Patricia, 4, and Glenford, 18 months.

THE WINNER . . . BY A KNOCKOUT

Jubilant team Thursday night were Mayor-Elect R. B. Wilson and his campaign manager A. E. Osborough.

Both men beamed as vote tallies traced galloping totals for Mr. Wilson who won by a record margin.

Meeting Could End Congo War

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United States said today the fighting in the Congo's Katanga province could be suspended once Katanga President Moise Tshombe leaves Elisabethville for a meeting with Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula.

In a statement released both here and in Washington, the U.S. state department said:

"The question of a cessation of hostilities is up to the United Nations, but we would hope that once Mr. Tshombe has demonstrated the seriousness of his intentions to negotiate by actually leaving Elisabethville for an agreed meeting place with Mr. Adoula, fighting would be suspended.

"We are in consultation with the acting secretary-general of the United Nations on this point."

Tshombe sent a telegram to President Kennedy Thursday saying he wanted to negotiate various aspects of the Congo problem with Adoula. He asked Kennedy's intervention "as a friendly man and as a Christian to designate a suitable negotiator to stop at once useless bloodshed."

The U.S. statement said Kennedy sent a prompt reply through the U.S. consul in Elisabethville that the United States was "proceeding immediately to explore the possibilities and would communicate further with him as soon as possible."

It noted that Adoula now is in the Katanga province, about 100 miles from Leopoldville, but newly appointed U.S. Ambassador Edmund Gullion in the Congo capital "hopes to be in contact with him before long."

In announcing Mr. Gullion's appointment today, Kennedy said he would be his personal representative in the Katanga situation.

Gullion was expected to confer with UN under-secretary Ralph J. Bunche, now in Leopoldville on a fact-finding visit, and Adoula before making approaches to Tshombe.

JUDGE LANDAU
... 'unparalleled enormity'

Hanging Death For Eichmann

JERUSALEM (AP)—Adolf Eichmann, Nazi Germany's expediter of Jews to the gas chambers, was sentenced today to be hanged in Israel for "a crime of unparalleled enormity." But no execution date was set pending appeals that may take several months.

Moshe Landau, president of the special three-man Israeli court which tried and convicted the former Gestapo colonel, intoned:

"This court sentences Adolf Eichmann to death for crimes against the Jewish people, crimes against humanity and war crimes."

Eichmann, 35, and balding, stood stiffly erect for 15 minutes while the tribunal first gave its reasons and then condemned him to be hanged. Six hundred persons packing the courtroom were deathly silent throughout the brief session, then filed out with hardly a sound.

Eichmann never even gulped. He looked so nervous and twitched during the trial, and his hands hung loose and unclenched by his side.

Eichmann, who had scornfully refused to plead for mercy before the sentence was pronounced, was told he has 10 days to file notice of appeal with the court and an additional five days to draft his reasons.

Reeves Willing To Start Talks

Times City Hall Reporter

A civic summit meeting will be held early next month to discuss launching a factual study of municipal integration for Greater Victoria—either by amalgamation or metropolitan government.

This was the first accomplishment of Mayor-Elect R. B. (Dick) Wilson only hours after he won a stunning 52 per cent of the votes Thursday night in his first election bid for city council.

His landslide victory over Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith was a record.

Mr. Wilson said his first action after his inauguration as mayor Jan. 1 will be to invite the Reeves of Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt to a meeting to discuss a proposal for a study of integration.

Solid Aldermanic Support Seen

Ready agreement for such a meeting came today from the three Reeves even though veteran Oak Bay and Esquimalt Reeves George Murdoch and A. C. Wurtele indicated they have not changed their minds against amalgamation.

Saanich Reeve-elect Stanley Murphy, who originally called for a Victoria-Saanich meeting on metro government, said he would meet Mr. Smith also to get his support as an MLA.

A poll of city council members Thursday night showed the mayor-elect will have solid

Major Breakthrough for City

It appears, from the co-operative tone of Reeves Murdoch and Wurtele to discuss a study group, that Mr. Wilson is likely to be successful in obtaining four-way participation in the study at least.

If he does, it will be a major breakthrough in the area's history.

A four-way study was strongly sought by Mayor Percy Scourrah and Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash in 1958 but it foundered on refusal by Oak Bay and Esquimalt to participate.

'Planning Is Not a New Thing'

But I'd like to do it in co-operation with all the other municipalities—not to force it onto them but to have a complete joint investigation of the situation."

Mr. Wilson said he felt that amalgamation, metro government and any other feasible method of integration should be viewed impartially.

Strongly advocating more planning for progress, he pointed out that "planning is not a new thing—it's been used in ages past in many cities."

"Our forefathers in Victoria planned well."

'War Policies' Charges Denied

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker today labelled as preposterous and false a statement by 50 McGill University professors that his policies on Berlin and nuclear weapons were driving Canada to war.

NEW YORK (AP)—Electrical workers, demanding a 20-hour work week, voted 5,000 to three Thursday night to tie up the electrical industry Jan. 1.

From Times News Services

ELISABETHVILLE—Indian United Nations detachments struck from the north at dawn today and battled their way to Katanga defence positions only four blocks from the heart of Elisabethville, capital of secessionist Katanga province.

Machine-gun and rifle fire crackled along the skirmish lines. Mortars duelled in the heaviest ground engagement of the war.

UN forces also attacked from the air. An Indian Canberra fighter-bomber raked Camp Tshombe, a Katanga military camp, with rockets as fighting raged around the Katanga provincial parliament and other parts of Elisabethville.

Few troops were believed to be still in the camp but frightened civilians elsewhere in the city fled for cover.

Katanga's secessionist regime said an all-out UN offensive was repulsed by its forces overnight and also claimed its troops were still resisting a UN attack on Katanga in the province's northern hinterland.

At least one civilian was reported killed in a fierce exchange of machine-gun fire and mortar shells during the night.

The British consulate said a British woman was killed when mortar shells blasted her house and added: "We have a lot of distressing problems on our hands."

A Katanga statement issued by President Moise Tshombe's office said the UN offensive was launched after heavy mortar fire at about 10.30 p.m. Thursday.

The Katangans returned the fire and the situation was never critical, the statement said.

FACES CHARGE

Manslaughter charges are to be laid against Duane Harms, driver of the bus in which 20 children were killed and 17 injured when it collided with a speeding passenger train Thursday. The charges will be laid by Assistant District Attorney Karl R. Ahlborn at Greeley, Colo. (See story page 2.)

CHILDREN OF INDIA

'Breadwinner' Earns $1.10 Weekly

The breadwinner in a poorer Victoria home might be a ditch-digger earning $70 a week.

This is bad enough but in the Indian community of Kodaikanal the breadwinner of one family is a 40-year-old woman who carries rocks eight hours a day for $1.10 a week.

Her husband is dead, her 15-year-old son just disappeared one day and she has two other children, twins, to support.

Some of the money Times readers gave during last year's Times Children of India Fund drive is helping to keep them alive now but there must be more.

Mrs. Sargi Joseph is just one of the thousands of Indians with the same burden of seeing their children slowly waste away.

The Unitarian Service Committee, on whose behalf the Times is campaigning, uses your money to provide powdered milk, some biscuits and an occasional article of clothing.

There are few in Victoria who would not give a quart of milk to needy children if they passed them on the street but this isn't possible.

What is possible and practical is to send the Times whatever donation you can spare. Volunteer workers in a chain from Canada to India will make sure that some child gets the milk.

By dint of using volunteer help and long experience in getting large quantities of food cheaply, the USC makes sure that every possible cent of your dollar works.

Donations by cash or cheque can be mailed or taken to the "Times Children of India Fund," 2631 Douglas. They can also be left at the Bank of Montreal, main branch, Douglas and Yates. (See Donations, page 32.)

SHE'S 'SWELL'

Christmas for 3-year-old Vicky Downer of Massena, N.Y., will be as merry as possible under the circumstances because her brother Teddy told Santa Claus just before he was killed by an auto Dec. 8. "Even if you have to leave me out, please don't forget my sister. She's a swell sister." Gifts have been pouring into the Downer home ever since. (AP Wirephoto.)

IMPORTS REACH RECORD LEVELS

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian imports reached record levels in October, due partly to the lower external value of the Canadian dollar.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has valued October imports at $558,000,000, a sharp 24.7-per-cent rise from $447,400,000 in October last year.

This helped push this year's 10-month import total up to $4,751,300,000, a gain of 4.5 per cent from $4,548,800,000 in the same period of 1960.

In both October and the 10-month period, imports from all geographic areas increased.

Imports from the United Kingdom soared by nearly one-third—32 per cent—to $541,000,000 from $410,000,000 a year earlier, while those from the rest of the Commonwealth went up 15.7 per cent to $28,000,000 from $24,200,000.

Purchases in the United States in October rose 23 per cent in value to $373,900,000 from $304,100,000. This was due partly to $16,000,000 in aircraft imports under mutual aid deals.

Imports from all other countries climbed 30.7 per cent to $102,100,000 from $78,100,000.

You Might Say He Began With a Rush (Gold)

BY MONTE ROBERTS

As the result of the discovery of gold in the Klondike, Richard Biggerstaff Wilson will take over as mayor of Victoria Jan. 1, 1962.

One hundred years earlier, in 1862, news of the rich Klondike strike which attracted hordes of amateur and professional prospectors reached London, where a north country boy named William Wilson labored as a bookkeeper accountant.

Wilson snuffed profit in the breeze—not directly from the goldfields, but indirectly as supplier.

He scraped together

Clothing Store

Shortly after, he was joined by his brother Joseph, and thus began the W. & J. Wilson clothing store and the Wilson family which produced the winner in Thursday's election.

William Wilson was the grandfather of Mayor-Elect Wilson who today recalled a story of the firm in those hectic, free-wheeling days 100 years ago.

"William was the merchant; Joseph the public relations man," he said with a grin somewhat wider than his usual small smile. "William would sell a suit, Joseph would take the customer to the Brown Jug and buy him a drink."

The new mayor's middle name, Biggerstaff, is that of his father, second son of William Wilson, and the surname of one of William's closest friends in London.

Dick Wilson has one brother, William, in the frozen food business, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas Lampman.

While studying for his Bachelor of Commerce at McGill University (his prep school was University School), he played football and made the senior squad. Although this was in the days before the forward pass, Dick Wilson is no reactionary.

"Today's rules are much better," he says. "And another thing—the game is way above the U.S. version, mainly due to the rouge."

When he returned from McGill in 1924, he went to work in the clothing store, but on the death of his father in 1928 used some of the estate to get into the automobile business.

Then the Crash

He established Motor House, at Yates and Vancouver, in a building now occupied by Speedway Motors.

Almost immediately, the 1929 crash and the consequent depression started sending business to the wall. Motor House tottered, but it didn't fall. There were many months when Wilson was lucky to get $100 out of the business.

In 1930, he acquired the Chevrolet franchise, but things were so bad by 1932 only 62 cars and trucks were sold—with sedans going for $888.

"In 1931," he recalled, "there were so many unsold 1930 Chevys that a dealer had to take two '30s for every '31 model."

In 1933, the young company showed its first profit, and with improving times, moved steadily forward.

Motor House expanded, moved down the street, and became Wilson Motors, in 1935. In 1957, Wilson sold the company, retaining ownership of the building and property, and "retired"—being immediately commandeered as Community Chest chairman.

Oak Bay Council

He held this post for two years and has served as Oak Bay councillor for two terms from 1949 to 1952. He is currently chairman of Victoria College's University Development Board, a vice-president of the Royal Jubilee Hospital Board, a director of Queen Alexandra Solarium for Crippled Children, Victoria Automobile Club, Norfolk House School, and chairman of the Victoria advisory board to Canada Trust Company.

He is the sixth Victoria native son to serve as mayor.

MONTE ROBERTS

Thursday, Dec. 14, 1961—namely, yesterday—will go down in history as a day of crisis.

I do not refer to the critical decisions made by the voters of the City of Victoria as they meandered to the polls to choose a mayor and a passel of aldermen.

I refer to the critical situation in Oak Bay—a situation which may lead to repercussions heard in the highest courts of the land.

What happened in Oak Bay yesterday was unheard-of. Simply.

THE OAK BAY LIQUOR STORE WAS CLOSED DUE TO THE ELECTIONS IN VICTORIA!

Really, now, I say, what?

Just because the citizens of Victoria were exercising their franchise (not too vigorously, of course) THE OAK BAY LIQUOR STORE WAS CLOSED.

As a resident of Oak Bay (I am not a citizen as yet, but my border crossing card is in good standing), it appalled me to see strong men go white to the lips as they approached the liquor store and read the sign—starch, austere, unyielding: "Store closed all day due to elections."

After all, was this not Oak Bay's Very Own Liquor store?

Had its establishment not eliminated that dread-trip into downtown Victoria, that safari only to be undertaken through direct need?

Were there not enthusiastic cries of delight (such as here, here, and well done) when Oak Bay finally was presented with its own liquor store, not too many months ago?

And now, this:

A sign saying "Closed all day due to elections."

What elections, wondered the citizens (and residents) of Oak Bay.

WE had our elections a week ago, the citizens (and residents) said.

When WE had our elections, they said, OUR liquor store was open, and it failed to result in over-indulgence, heated arguments, or rioting in the streets.

At one stage, there was talk of forming a citizens' committee, and marching on the Legislative Buildings.

However, cooler heads prevailed. One reason being it is a frightfully long march from Oak Bay to the Legislative Buildings.

And the other reason being (I hate to commit this fact to cold print) THE OAK BAY LIQUOR STORE IS ACTUALLY IN VICTORIA.

Really.

The way matters are at present, Oak Bay residents may purchase spirituous encouragement at THEIR store on THEIR election day.

But not on Victoria's election day. That's when they must drive to Esquimalt for reinforcements.

And an Oak Bay resident really doesn't feel quite comfortable in Esquimalt.

After all,

Now you know why Thursday, Dec. 14, was a day of crisis in Oak Bay.

I can assure you, the issue is not yet settled.

Oak Bay is going to get its very own liquor store within its very own boundaries, or there will be an Alaska Panhandle dispute which will make 54-46 or fight look like cream puffs at 30 paces.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

"A" group of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey Restaurant parking lot for a soil survey at Francis Park.

A tool box valued at between $200-$300 was stolen from the trunk of a car owned by Donald Strong, 1925 Kings Road.

Mr. Strong told police his car was parked in the Tally Ho Hotel parking lot for a time and later in the New Court House parking lot.

He said the theft might have occurred at either place.

Karina Marie Willard, the six-week-old Victoria baby given a one-in-five chance of surviving a rare operation Saturday, has been taken off the critical list at Vancouver General Hospital.

She is in satisfactory condition and improving, a hospital spokesman said Thursday.

The operation to correct malformed veins near the baby's heart was the first of its kind attempted in Vancouver.

A heart surgery team performed the operation on Karina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Millard, 1725 Bank Street.

Coroner J. H. Moore said today an inquest is not necessary in the death of an elderly woman early Thursday in her smoke-filled Ten Mile Point home.

Mrs. Norma I. Moreton, a 71-year-old widow who lived alone at 2920 Sea View Road, was overcome by smoke from a fire of unknown origin which burned curtains and blackened the walls of her bedroom.

"What Are Kindergartens For?" will be the topic of a discussion on Parents' Night at the Goosey Gander Kindergarten on Tuesday, at 8 p.m.

Slides of children's activities taken throughout the fall term will be shown.

A suggestion by CPO Eric Crone, 1790 Keith Place, has earned a cash award from the suggestion-award board of the public service of Canada.

CPO Crone suggested a method of cleaning ships' bilges while at sea, which has been adopted for use by the RCN.

A meeting of the Intermediate Musical Arts Society will be held tonight at 7:15 in the Newstead Hall.

Deep Pride

It was obvious to a visitor today that Dick Wilson takes a deep pride in being a member of one of Victoria's oldest families, and in the fact he will assume the duties of mayor in the city's centennial year—which is also 100 years after the first Wilson arrived in Victoria.

A lean-framed, slim, athletic-looking man of 37 (he distributes 178 pounds on a five-foot 11-inch frame), his main sport today is golf, which he plays frequently and scores in the low 80s. He also enjoys trips into the outdoors for hunting and fishing.

RIDES HERD

By IAIN HUNTER

Early-morning strollers on the Oak Bay golf course will be under close surveillance during the winter and are liable to be severely disciplined if they disturb the widgeon that have taken over in the vicinity of the third tee.

For the widgeon have a self-appointed guardian in the form of a lone White-fronted Goose.

The yellow-footed bird with the white patch around the base of its bill, which makes him look as if he had been dipping it into a bowl of icing sugar, looks rather out of place among the smaller ducks. But with outstretched neck and baleful eye he is prepared to defend his adopted flock against all comers.

RIDES HERD

The goose rides herd on the widgeon both at night when they come onto the course, and during the day when they disperse as far afield as Trial Island.

During the evening and morning flights it takes up its position of honor at "point." Local ornithologists and wild goose chasers agree that the mutual adoption of lone goose and widgeon is "unusual though not rare."

Last year apparently there were two adopted geese in the same area—a white-fronted and a snow goose. Whether the snow goose has found its way back to its own flock or onto someone's Christmas menu it is hard to say.

It is also impossible to tell whether this year's visitor is the same one that has taken up with the widgeon in years past.

TOO TIRED?

The white-fronted goose summers in the Arctic and migrates down the west coast to winter in Mexico or the gulf states. Perhaps our friend was too tired to make the whole trip, perhaps he got lost, or perhaps in the crowded autumn airways he found himself in a strange formation with a different destination.

At any rate, "Anser albifrons," to give him his Latin name, like other geese, seems to have had little difficulty in gaining acceptance in a strange fraternity.

It is easy to imagine Anser waddling into the midst of a startled crowd of widgeon with no other credentials than his name and his big feet, and saying, "Come on fellas, lets albifrons."

SNOW AGAIN MAYBE

The slight warming trend of the past few days will reverse itself tonight with a return to freezing temperatures and the possibility of bit of snow, weatherman William Mackie said today.

Indians Plan 1962 Start On New Hall

Songhees Indians next year hope to start constructing a community hall which would be used to stage ceremonial dances for tourists and the general public.

Mrs. Sam Joseph, who teaches native dances, told a meeting of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society Thursday a building fund soon may be big enough to launch the project.

The Songhees band headed by Chief John Albany has been raising money for the past two years for the building. Some returns from the annual Vancouver Island Festival held in spring go towards the fund.

Mrs. Joseph said the hall also would be used for teaching young people hobbies and crafts.

Dr. A. N. Beattie, president of the society, replied that members are prepared to assist the band.

The meeting was held at the Victoria Public Library and was attended by several Indian chiefs from South Vancouver Island.

ENTRY DEADLINE EXTENDED ON HOME LIGHTING CONTEST

Entry deadline for the Junior Chamber of Commerce Christmas home lighting contest has been extended to Tuesday evening.

Lighting committee chairman Maynard Savery said today the chamber hoped to increase the number of entries by this means.

"We have about 40 in now," he said, "but we would like to have a great deal more."

In view of possible delayed entries in the mail a box will be placed outside the Jaycee office, 1217 Douglas, and entries can be dropped there after the weekend.

Judging will take place Thursday night.

PAINT FIRM VETERAN

Funeral Saturday For Businessman

William Henry Lawson, 73, for many years general sales manager for the British America Paint Co. Ltd. here and one of the best known executives in the industry, died Thursday at his home, 1362 Rockland Avenue.

He was born and educated in Victoria, and at the age of 15 joined the Pendray Soap and Paint Works on Humboldt Street, on the site of the Empress Hotel, as office boy.

Surviving are the widow, Mabel, at home; one son, Melvin S. (Red); a daughter, Mrs. Verlyn W. Watson, four grandchildren, and a brother, Stanley E. Lawson, all in Victoria. Funeral services will be held at Haywards's Saturday at 3:15 p.m., with Rev. J. L. W. McLean, DD, officiating, and will be followed by cremation.

Clean-Up Drive Launched By Ex-Premier's Grandson

A new political reform group was officially launched in Victoria today by Robin Dunsmuir, a grandson of one of B.C.'s early premiers and lieutenant-governors.

"All I'm opposing is bad government," said Mr. Dunsmuir, 49, who pledged his full time to "cleaning up" what he called the present "dictatorial" regime in power in B.C.

Mr. Dunsmuir said his new group, called the Political Reform Association of B.C., is not founded on political or financial ambition.

EDUCATE PUBLIC

He said its role must be to educate the public to politics.

He said he did not intend to contest provincial elections, but would be prepared to support old-line parties if they followed his principles.

"If people would like it, and we're strong enough, we could fill the breach as an emergency measure," he said.

Mr. Dunsmuir, grandson of Hon. James Dunsmuir, premier from 1900-1902, and lieutenant-governor, 1906-1909, issued a basic 10-point platform, but said he wanted his group's policy to be formed by members.

FREE MEMBERSHIP

"Membership in this association will be free to all British Columbians who have the best interests of their province at heart. If sufficient numerical support is forthcoming a meeting will be called to organize the association and an appeal for funds will be made to carry on its work."

Mr. Dunsmuir said he had voted Social Credit in the last election, but had grown more and more dissatisfied and "angry" at its actions.

"The real thing that got me was the confiscation of the B.C. Electric without the right of appeal," he said.

GOOD WISHES

He said he had talked to a lot of people in Victoria and Vancouver who expressed interest in his group and hoped it would "roll."

"In a supposedly free and democratic society the premier, with the co-operation of a weak and servile government, has assumed dictatorial powers contrary to all the established principles of democracy," said Mr. Dunsmuir.

"The rule of law is being abandoned; the rights of the individual and of minority groups are ignored; the will of the people through their elected representatives no longer controls parliament."

Among his 10 declared goals: To institute "proper democratic government" in B.C.; to raise the standard of parliamentary debate and procedure; to eliminate "patronage, graft and corruption in government"; to keep the people fully and truthfully informed; to co-operate with the federal government.

Bail Raised To $4,000 For Realtor

Bail was raised to $4,000 today in city police court in the wake of nine charges against former city realtor Milton Harter King of theft by conversion.

The nine charges involve a total of more than $31,000, and will be read in full detail Jan. 5 when King makes his plea.

Following are the amounts charged against King: Patterson-Hunt Building Ltd., $1,700; Vancity Realty Ltd., $10,000; Gladys Milligan, $2,600; Thomas and Rebecca Bennett, $400; James and Ann Colvin, $1,200; Estate of E. J. Savannah, $3,200; Estate of E. J. Savannah, $2,000; James Morrison, $8,000, and J. Stewart Smith, $2,867.

MISUNDERSTANDING

Only the first of the nine was read in court, but city prosecutor Angus Smith had bail raised from $2,500 in lieu of a former misunderstanding with Magistrate William Ostler.

The magistrate had previously set total bail at $2,500 but Mr. Smith explained he had desired an "extra $2,500."

Defence lawyer David Hummel agreed this was correct and said the additional sureties, to $4,000, would be raised: Jack Barracough, 2830 Lansdowne, put up sureties on the first seven counts.

Mr. Hummel also elected trial by magistrate for his client. He specifically asked to reserve plea until then because "there is just the slightest chance that I might ask for a preliminary hearing at that time."

ASK The TIMES

Q. Will you please tell me what was the amount of the last donation to Victoria Symphony by the municipality of Oak Bay, and, taking into consideration the number of taxpayers in the municipality, what would this amount to in dollars per taxpayer?—J.M.

A. It is a case of cents per taxpayer: nearly 32c. The municipality donated $350, and there are 7,992 owner-electors in Oak Bay.

Q. Would you please tell me how much it cost to build the Grand Coulee dam?—D.C.

A. Total cost of the dam and power plant was $174 millions. It is estimated that the project will have cost over three times this amount when land reclamation and other connected projects are completed.

Reeves Willing To Meet Wilson

By JOHN MIKA
Times City Hall Reporter

A civic summit meeting will be held early next month to discuss launching a factual study of municipal integration for Greater Victoria—either by amalgamation or metropolitan government.

This was the first accomplishment of Mayor-Elect R. B. (Dick) Wilson only hours after he won a stunning 82 per cent of the votes Thursday night in his first election bid for city council.

His landslide victory over Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith was a record.

Mr. Wilson said his first action after his inauguration as mayor Jan. 1 will be to invite the reeves of Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt to a meeting to discuss a proposal for a study of integration.

Solid Aldermanic Support Seen

Ready agreement for such a meeting came today from the three reeves even though veteran Oak Bay and Esquimalt reeves George Murdoch and A. C. Wurtele indicated they have not changed their minds against amalgamation.

Saanich Reeve-elect Stanley Murphy, who originally called for a Victoria-Saanich meeting on metro government, said he would meet Mr. Smith also to get his support as an MLA.

A poll of city council members Thursday night showed the mayor-elect will have solid aldermanic support for his move.

Mr. Wilson, an advocate of integration, called for a return to the "vision and planning" by pioneer city councils.

But, he said, a study of all the factors and costs are necessary first.

He proposes that the four municipalities unite in asking the government to invoke Sec. 766 of the Municipal Act which would create an integration study group.

The group would have two representatives from each of the municipalities with a provincial appointee as chairman.

Major Breakthrough for City

It appears from the optimistic tone of Reeves Murdoch and Wurtele, that Mr. Wilson is likely to be successful in obtaining four-way participation in the study at least.

Full-Scale Battle In Katanga

From Times News Service
ELISABETHVILLE—Indian United Nations detachments struck from the north at dawn today and battled their way to Katangan defence positions only four blocks from the heart of Elisabethville, capital of secessionist Katanga province.

Machine-gun and rifle fire cracked along the skirmish lines. Mortars duelled in the heaviest ground engagement of the war.

UN forces also attacked from the air. An Indian Canberra fighter-bomber raked Camp Tshombe, a Katangan military camp, with rockets as fighting raged around the Katanga provincial parliament, and other parts of Elisabethville.

Few troops were believed to be still in the camp but frightened civilians elsewhere in the city fled for cover.

Katanga's secessionist regime said an all-out UN offensive was repulsed by its forces overnight and also claimed its troops were still resisting a UN attack on Kongolo in the province's northern hinterland.

At least one civilian was reported killed in a fierce exchange of machine-gun fire and mortar shells during the night.

The British consulate said a British woman was killed when mortar shells blasted her house and added: "We have a lot of distressing problems on our hands."

A Katangan statement issued by President Moïse Tshombe's office said the UN offensive was launched after heavy mortar fire at about 10.30 p.m. Thursday.

The Katangans returned the fire and the situation was never critical, the statement said.

Meeting Could End Congo War

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—

The United States said today the fighting in The Congo's Katanga province could be suspended once Katanga President Moïse Tshombe leaves Elisabethville for a meeting with Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula.

In a statement released both here and in Washington, the U.S. state department said: "The question of a cessation of hostilities is up to the United Nations, but we would hope that once Mr. Tshombe has demonstrated the seriousness of his intentions to negotiate."

THE WINNER . . . BY A KNOCKOUT

Jubilant team Thursday night was Mayor-Elect R. B. Wilson and his campaign manager A. E. Osborough.

Both men beamed as vote tallies traced galloping totals for Mr. Wilson who won by a record margin.

Bennett's Power Policy Backed by Keenleyside

B.C. Power Commission chairman Dr. H. L. Keenleyside today publicly declared himself a "two river man" in full support of Premier Bennett's power development plan.

Dr. Keenleyside broke two and a half years' silence on the issue which, he said, will affect everyone in B.C. for the next century and a half.

He fully supported the premier's plan to sell Columbia River downstream benefits to the U.S. and to develop the Peace River as well.

He attacked the eastern Canadian viewpoint and urged a change in the federal government's policy.

Dr. Keenleyside said the downstream benefits, power generated in the U.S. as a result of dams built in Canada under an international treaty, should be sold to the Americans for 15 to 25 years.

He echoed the premier's confidence that they will be sold for 5 mills per kilowatt hour.

Dr. Keenleyside made his big power speech at Nanaimo, during a Rotary Club luncheon in the Malaspina Hotel.

"Refusal to allow the sale of the downstream benefits under such conditions would do direct, gross and permanent injury to the economy of our province," he declared.

"This problem is the crux of the ultimate power development program and the decision we make on this issue may well decide the economic future of this and the next generation."

Dr. Keenleyside pooh-poohed Ottawa objections to export of power, although he said that sale of the downstream benefits could not be considered as export.

BENEFIT ALL

He also added: "Given the implementation of a program of this kind I believe that the economic progress of our province can be hastened and the maximum value can be extracted from our resources for the benefit of our own people and of all Canadians."

"And unnecessary delay, any refusal of co-operation by any level of government, any inef-

Issue Goes Over Until Next Year

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations General Assembly today climaxed a historic China debate by refusing to give Nationalist China's seat to the Chinese Communists.

The vote on the Soviet proposal was 36 in favor, 48 against, with 20 abstaining.

Britain voted for the Soviet proposal, while the United States, France and Canada voted against it.

The decision represented a substantial victory for United States as the China issue received its first showdown test since the Communists took over the China mainland 12 years ago.

The issue now goes over until next year when the Russians are expected to renew their demands.

Before the main vote, the Assembly virtually slammed the door on Red China for another year when it decided that a two-thirds majority is needed to seat the Peking regime.

FOUGHT HARD

The Soviet Union and most of the backers of the Peking government had fought hard to defeat the two-thirds provision which was brought into force by an assembly decision that the China problem was "an important question."

The vote on the two-thirds proposal indicated the relative strength of the two sides and thus foreshadowed the defeat of a Soviet proposal calling for the immediate seating of Communist China.

At the outset the U.S.-backed proposal was given priority by a vote of 61 to 21, with 20 abstaining.

By THOMAS R. REEDY

JERUSALEM (AP)—Adolf Eichmann, Nazi Germany's expediter of Jews to the gas chambers, was sentenced today to be hanged in Israel for "a crime of unparalleled enormity." But no execution date was set pending appeals that may take several months.

Moshe Landau, president of the special three-man Israeli court which tried and convicted the former Gestapo colonel, intoned:

"This court sentences Adolf Eichmann to death for crimes against the Jewish people, crimes against humanity and war crimes."

Eichmann, 55, and balding, stood stiffly erect for 15 minutes while the tribunal first gave its reasons and then condemned him to be hanged. Six hundred persons packing the courtroom were deathly silent throughout the brief session, then filed out with hardly a sound.

Eichmann never even gulped visibly. He quivered the facial nervous twitch evident during the trial, and his hands hung loose and unclenched by his side.

Eichmann, who had scornfully refused to plead for mercy before the sentence was pronounced, was told he has 10 days to file notice of appeal with the court and an additional five days to draft his reasons.

Chief defence counsel Dr. Robert L. Servatius from West

CHILDREN OF INDIA

'Breadwinner' Earns $1.10 Weekly

The breadwinner in a poorer Victoria home might be a ditch-digger earning $70 a week.

This is bad enough but in the Indian community of Kootenai the breadwinner of one family is a 40-year-old woman who carries rocks eight hours a day for $1.10 a week.

Her husband is dead, her 15-year-old son just disappeared one day and she has two other children, twins, to support.

Some of the money Times readers gave during last year's Times children of India Fund drive is helping to keep them alive now but there must be more.

Mrs. Sargi Joseph is just one of the thousands of Indians with the same burden of seeing their children slowly waste away.

The Unitarian Service Committee, on whose behalf the Times is campaigning, uses your money to provide powdered milk, some biscuits and an occasional article of clothing.

There are few in Victoria who would not give a quart of milk to needy children if they passed them on the street but this isn't possible.

What is possible and practical is to send the Times whatever donation you can spare. Volunteer workers in a chain from Canada to India will make sure that some child gets the milk.

By dint of using volunteer help and long experience in getting large quantities of food cheaply, the USC makes sure that every possible cent of your dollar works.

Donations by cash or cheque can be mailed or taken to the "Times Children of India Fund," 2631 Douglas. They can also be left at the Bank of Montreal, main branch, Douglas and Yates. (See Donations, page 32.)

He didn't do too bad for a foreigner, eh Mister Smith?

Prices Unaffected By U.S. Purchases

The recent rise in beef prices has nothing to do with U.S. buying of feeder cattle from B.C., according to the B.C. Beef Cattle Growers' Association.

Reports which have suggested the rise and fall of beef prices are linked with U.S. purchase of feeder cattle from B.C. are incorrect, says Julian Fry, secretary of the association.

The growers' association makes these points:

1. First and foremost, U.S.

Inspection

LANGFORD — Seventy-five children will gather at the parish hall of Our Lady of the Rosary Church, Saturday, at 10.30 a.m., for inspection by the supervisory board for catechism classes.

The children, aged six to 12 years, have been attending 12 catechism classes conducted in Our Lady of the Rosary parish in the past six months.

Refreshments will be served after the inspection.

purchase of feeder cattle does not affect finished beef prices. Feeder cattle purchased now do not come on the market for an average of six months.

2. Conditions in the beef trade are such that no group can create an arbitrarily high price in any one area of North America. The entire continent is one beef pool and only freight, tariffs, and exchange act as brakes of more than a temporary nature.

3. Although standard grades of beef are just as good, public demand for choice and good grade beef has created a shortage which, in turn, has forced prices higher.

4. The beef market in North America is relatively free from artificial interference.

The B.C. association notes that this province is a deficiency area in beef with only 2 per cent of Canadian production. Canada, in turn produces only one-tenth the volume of U.S. production.

Concludes Mr. Fry: "A tall that size can't wag the dog."

SHE'S 'SWELL'

Christmas for 3-year-old Vicky Downer of Massena, N.Y., will be as merry as possible under the circumstances because her brother Teddy told Santa Claus just before he was killed by an auto Dec. 8. "Even if you have to leave me out, please don't forget my sister. She's a swell sister." Gifts have been pouring into the Downer home ever since. (AP Wirephoto.)
